

WAILINGS

Remember those Sailors that we played in the opening game this year and just managed to beat by a very small score? Well, St. Martin's took those fellows to port with a score of 46-0. Isn't that news? Especially when we stop to realize that the St. Martin's boys are our guests on Waldo Field tomorrow. Am I blue? I'll say so, but over-confidence on the part of the visitors and bulldog grit on the part of the Vikings may play a big part in tomorrow's game.

Did you notice that for a change, all the football men have their shoes polished to a shining point? While they were in Portland, a shoe shine parlor was taking place and shoes could be polished for five cents. Needless to say, the Bellingham boys killed three people in their rush for a chair.

I'm an awfully "pessimistic" guy, but Dutch Wilder has a hurt back and will probably be out of the game tomorrow and that isn't all, another back field star is also on the sick list. Eacrett, the punting ace, is out with water on the knee. There "ain't" no justice.

Orrie Blanton lost ten pounds on the Oregon trip. The boys were given a liberal allowance to pay for their meals and by hook or by crook Orrie lost his lucre. How did he survive? Really, folks, it's quite humorous, but I can't tell you. Ask Orrie.

ONE WEEK from tomorrow and we play our Homecoming game here with Cheney Normal. We have not heard a great deal from that member of the Tri-Normal conference yet this year. They beat the Idaho Normal 13 to 12. It will be the first game of the conference for this season and Coach Carver is pointing the team for that game.

Word was received from the Ellensburg squad that they have a team of veterans that have won either two or three football letters each. Mostly three. The Sedro-Woolley boys on our squad are looking forward to playing against their old teammate, Neil McKay, who is now the backfield ace for Ellensburg.

It's nice to see these milers and two-milers out training for the spring meets already. It takes a lot of internal fortitude to stick to training rules and work out on the track for eight months just to run two or three races in meets. Give them a hand, fellows.

The announcer from the Oregon Stadium last Friday night sang out, "Folks, you are now being treated to some of the hardest tackling ever witnessed in this bowl. These Vikings tackle with a vengeance." Now, isn't that something?

The author of this column got himself into trouble last week when he mentioned the Night games in the grandstand. Everyone wanted to know how I knew so much about it when I had been here but two weeks. Lay off, will you? I was just going from whispered reports.

ROCKNE SERIES STARTS

This week the Grand Theatre and Manager Lorea Wahl are to be complimented on bringing to Bellingham the famous and long heralded series of football pictures produced by the greatest football coach of all time Knute Rockne of Notre Dame.

The Grand Theatre will play these one each week for six weeks. Knute Rockne is taking the famous Four Horseman of Notre Dame, Red Grange of Illinois, Morris Cagle, Albie Brooth and other great grid stars and depicting the famous plays of the past years, as well as showing his methods of training men and planning new plays. There is nothing more timely than the showing of these films at this time of the year, when we are developing our own winning teams.

VIKINGS TO BATTLE WITH ST. MARTINS

Rockne's Notre Dame Tactics to Be Used Against Vikings; Dopesters Give Rangers Edge.

Tomorrow will find the Vikings battling the strong St. Martins aggregation on Waldo field at 2:15 p. m.

St. Martins will come up here with an entirely new style of play, called the Notre Dame shift, used by Knute Rockne's charges. This style of play was brought to the coast by James Phelan, head coach of the University of Washington, and has proved very effective. It has been rumored that St. Martins is a farm for the University of Washington and they go there to make up grades.

Recently the St. Martins Rangers defeated the Coast Guardsmen from Port Townsend, 46 to 0. Whether the Coast Guards were having an off day or the Rangers were playing better than usual is not known, but at any rate things don't look so well for the Vikings, who were barely able to nose out these same Guards 14 to 6. However, Carver's men may shove the dope bucket to the winds.

The Vikings will be greatly handicapped by injuries received in last week's game. Dutch Wilder, full-back, is handicapped by a back injury. It was thought that he was badly hurt, but an examination proved that he is just temporarily on the "old soldiers" squad.

Iver Moe, star end, has what is common to athletes, a "charlie horse" in the muscles of the thigh. Joe Burch, backfield ace who scored in the Coast Guard game, is suffering from a bad shoulder. Eacrett, also a backfield man, is limping around due to a bad knee. These injuries are bound to slow up the offense.

St. Martins is strong in reserves, having about thirty behemoths who will be hard to stop. They have two squads of equal strength. The Vikings seem to be weak where the Rangers are strong. The Vikings have few reserves who can successfully step into the regulars' shoes, in the advent these injuries keep them on the bench. Although beaten in last Friday's game, Coach Carver stated that he wasn't disappointed in the team's showing. "The team that played at Portland Friday night against Monmouth Normal looked like a different team than the one that beat the Coast Guards a week ago," he continued.

Campbell Selected Viking Yell Leader

Although an entering freshman, Colin Campbell, recently elected Yell King, is not without experience in the yell leading field. He graduated from the Kent, Washington, high school in 1930, serving that school during his first two years as yell king. In his junior year he was vice-president of the student body, and was president during his senior year. He was also a one year letterman in football at Kent.

Campbell is looking forward with much enthusiasm to the coming season. "If I can receive the response and support throughout the year that I did during the Friday try-outs, there is no reason why the pep in W. S. N. S. can not equal or excel that of any college on the coast and be an encouragement to our team in bringing victory to our Alma Mater."

As assistant yell leader Campbell has appointed Eddie Dife, one of his opponents in the recent election. Dife is a sophomore and a "W" man.

PERSOHN IN CHARGE

Miss Bernice Persohn is in charge of the Extension Department due to Mrs. May Lovgren's absence. Miss Persohn was Mrs. Lovgren's secretary last year and proved capable. She is assisted by Hugh Lovgren, who worked part time with them last year.

SENSATION AT YALE

Though he weighs only 144 pounds, Albie Booth is hailed as Yale's premier football player this fall. Since he made Yale's three touchdowns to defeat Army he has been a great hero at New Haven.

Booth is the son of a New Haven workingman, is 21 years old and doesn't use liquor or tobacco.

Coach Sam Carver, "Pop" Gunn, and "Occie" Thorsen Have Mystery Fight

There's one bed in a hotel in Portland, Ore., that isn't going to be quite so springy and horizontal in the middle as it was before Friday night.

Not since somebody, who had best remain unmentioned, ripped a pants leg off his best pair of full dress trousers jumping over a picket fence after celebrating a football victory, had such an event taken place. And the funny part of it is that Normal lost the game.

Because of this, the mystery is all the deeper over what Head Coach Sam Carver, Assistant Coach R. E. (Pop) Gunn and "Technical Adviser" Oscar Thorsen found to fight about in that narrow hotel room in Portland after Friday night's game.

"I was sitting there calm and peaceful when the storm broke," Pop said.

"I don't know what it was all about," said Sam.

"I didn't start it," said Occie.

"Maybe there wasn't a fight," said the writer.

"Oh, my yes, there was a fight," said Sam, Pop and Occie.

"What was it over—wine, women or football?"

"We really don't know."

"Well, who won?"

"We haven't decided yet."

"How did it all happen?"

"Well, Oscar swung."

"No, I didn't swing," said Oscar.

"Well, you should have," said Pop.

"No, it was Oscar that swung."

said Sam.

"I missed the mark," said Oscar.

"No, he hit the mark," said Sam and Pop, looking at each other.

"What damage was done?" asked the author.

"The bed—it's not so good," said Sam, Pop and Oscar.

On your way out to the study room, Watson, you might toss me that package of needles.

VIKINGS DEFEATED ON OREGON FIELD

Game Played in Lighted Stadium; Flowers Great Ground Gainer in Game With Normal School.

(Special to The Viking) Oregon State Normal defeated the Vikings 26-0 in last Friday night's game.

True to forecasted dope, Oregon staged an effective offense, well seasoned with trick plays, which quite baffled the Bellingham grid-ders.

Use Gold Football

The first touchdown came early in the game when Monmouth pulled a successful sneak play around the Vikings' right end. This started the fireworks for the Oregon team and they scored repeatedly during the first half. Each touchdown came as a direct or indirect result from some delayed, spin or other deceptive play.

All during the first half the teams used a football which had been treated with gold paint. This was undoubtedly done to enable the players to see the ball better. There was another slight technicality, however; Oregon wore gold colored jerseys which blended perfectly with the trick football. There is a possibility that the color scheme had a great deal to do with the 20-0 score piled up against the Vikings during the first half.

The second canto of the game found a white football placed ready for the kick off. The Monmouth grid-ders scored only once during the second half. That touchdown came on a blocked Washington kick.

Flowers Stars

Noel Flowers was a big ground gainer for Bellingham. Iverson and Burish also contributed timely gains. The line played good ball in streaks, only to look weak at other moments.

The man at the microphone characterized the game as producing the hardest tackling and blocking that stadium had seen in many games. This tribute was to both teams, as Bellingham kept driving until the last gun.
