NINETEEN HUNDRED SIXTY-ONE

1961 KLIPSUN

WESTERN WASHINGTON COLLEGE
BELLINGHAM, WASHINGTON

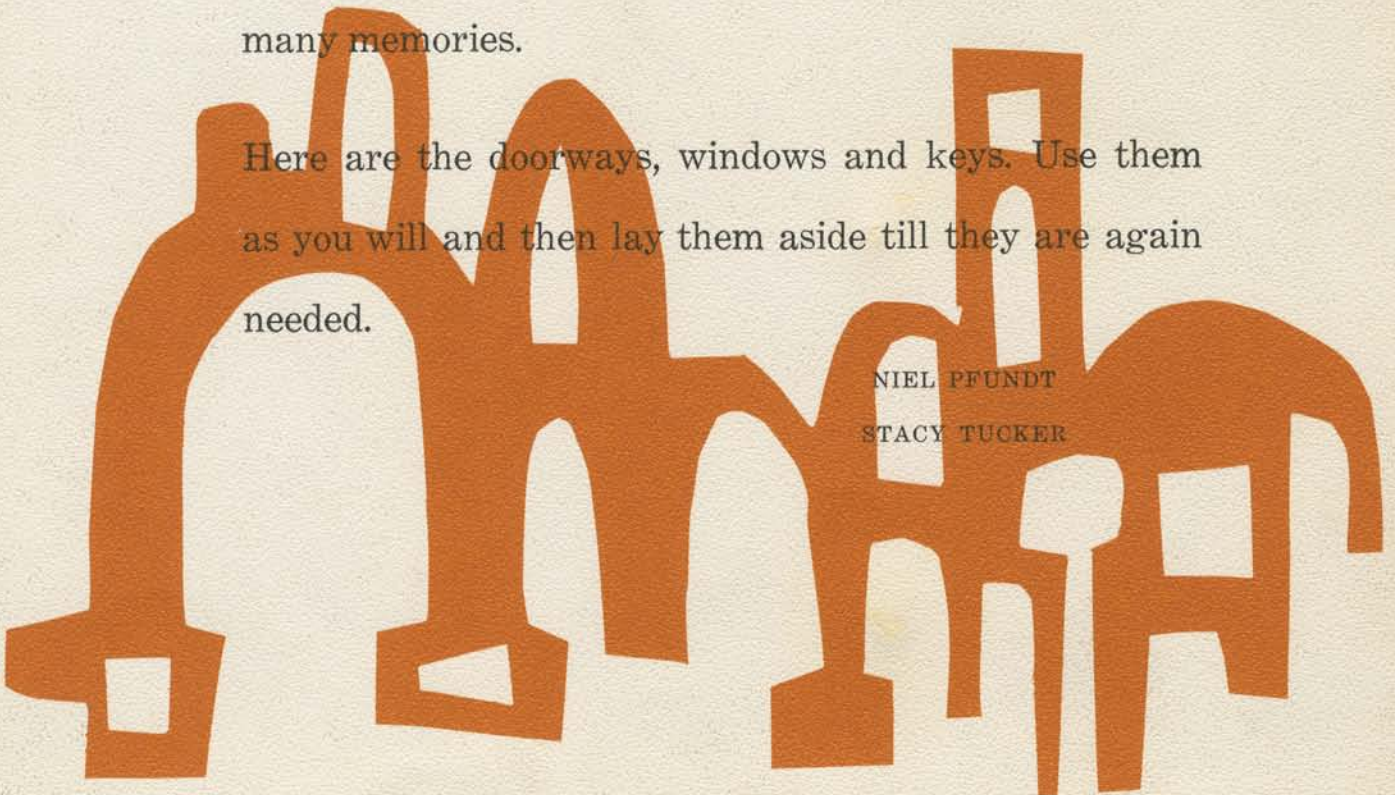

What is a doorway? Quite often in the most simple everyday objects one may find ideas that will in turn give birth to rather complex and meaningful things. Yes, what is a doorway? While we are on the subject of doorways and the like, what is a window . . . or a key? Through this annual you will find numerous doorways, windows and keys.

In one way an annual is a doorway. It is a doorway that has been left slightly ajar to give the reader a peek into the past. It is an open window through which to gaze at yesterday's pageants. It is a key to a casket containing many memories.

Here are the doorways, windows and keys. Use them as you will and then lay them aside till they are again needed.

ADMINISTRATION

“College is not a social romp,” “College is not an extension of high school.” What is College? A definition may not be agreed upon by everyone, no matter what Webster happens to say, but no matter what this educational, evasive thing called “college” is, it is the administration that keeps it going and in existence.

Behind the doors of many offices and in back of many windows, sit the many figures who are the keys to our educational experiences. In back of placement, in back of that long-dreaded, long-lined, long-necessary process of registration, sit the minds of the leaders, the administration.

Perhaps it has occurred to every serious student at one time or another that the pursuit of knowledge is an activity doomed to failure, that, indeed, since every new truth seems to beget two new problems, the more progress one makes, the further he gets from the goal. Yet this is occasion for despair only if the process of learning is dull and dulling, and the problematic state only frustrating. If, to the contrary, to-be-learning is better than to-have-learned, and if the recognition of a problem is itself a refreshment of spirit, one begins to see why the college years are the best years of all.

JAMES L. JARRETT
President

Behind the door in Old Main numbered 214 is the office of the Dean of Women. Problems of the female gender of collegiate-type resident are brought before her in varying numbers every day. Ready to talk over your problems and assist with workable solutions, Dean Powers has probably, at some time or another, come into contact with most of the female students on campus. Besides advising A.W.S., the Dean assists with housing accommodations, and the formulation and keeping of college rules.

Back in the "days of yore" in high school, while we were all attending college conferences, most of us had our first contact with the helpful assistance and wit of Dean "Mac". He might even have been part of the reason that you decided to attend Western. Residing during college hours behind the door of Old Main 216, Dean McDonald helps men students with their problems, in finding a job, or acquiring a loan, besides advising Norsemen and keeping the male students from too vigorously over-stepping the bounds of society.

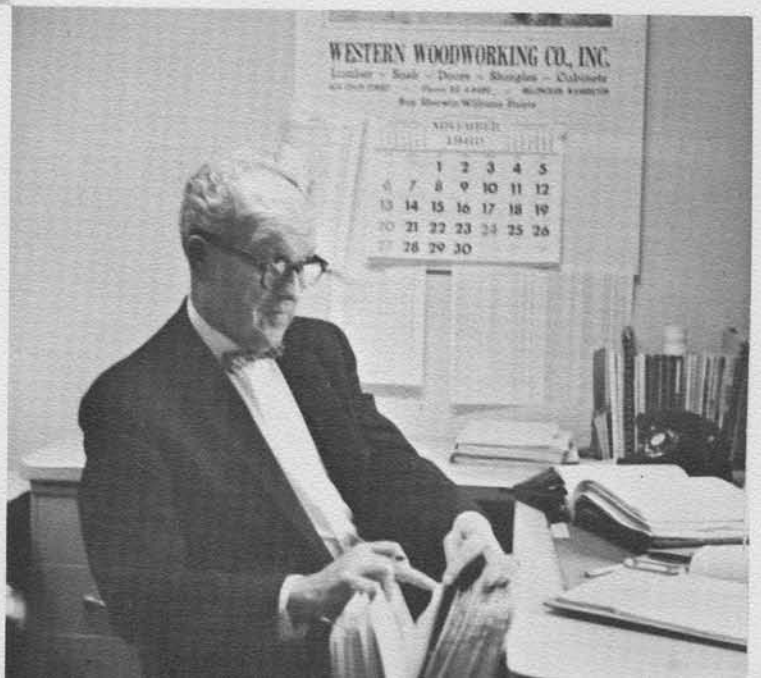

Some students may not even know that Merle S. Kuder, Director of Student Personnel Services, exists, unless they still have a faint picture of him speaking during welcome week. But many students do have a very clear picture of him and admire his helpful guidance. Dr. Kuder coordinates student welfare and helps to develop policy, besides providing counsel and guidance.

Directing the hectic stream of activities in the Viking Union Building, which is the center of Western's day and night social life, is the person of Harold "Barney" Goltz, Director of Student Activities. Always ready to help and cooperate, or give suggestions if they are needed, the busy Mr. Goltz indirectly touches the lives of us all.

Comptroller Sam Buchanan keeps the budget in balance. Checks coming in have to meet payments going out; state-paid budgets have to be kept in trim shape. Metrecal came out in six-packs in 1960; Washington state dollars didn't.

Pepsodent may hold the secret behind the whiteness of teeth, but it doesn't hold the secret behind the sincerity of the smiles you see as you enter one of these offices on campus where you are greeted by a secretary or receptionist. Whether it is in Old Main or in the Viking Union, the office staff of the college should have it's own share of badges for keeping the school in running order.

FACULTY AND DEPARTMENTS

Life is a series of doorways and windows, entrances and glimpses, openings and observations. Our education is a room to be entered by slowly, steadily thrusting open the heavy three-layered doorway of study, time, and persistence. Our goal is seen and encouraged by windows which enable us to see the knowledge for which we are searching. The windows through which we glimpse and understand our education are the faculty.

Some windows may be a little clearer, less fogged than others, and some offer a better view of what we are seeking, but they are windows and what we see with their help depends on our desire to see and our efforts to perceive. And eventually the door will be open and our education achieved . . .

Economics, Business, Government

The Economics, Business, and Government Department offers a wide variety of courses from accounting and political science, to typing and shorthand. Though some people's shorthand does tend to be longer than their long hand, students do gain skill in the manual parts of business, and organizations such as the Model United Nations, and International Relations Club help develop skill in the other aspects of the department.

As Fielding would say, Dear reader, I hope you will understand when I say that we must continue this discussion another day . . . our English Department is teaching us to be brief, accurate, grammatically correct, concise and well, I'm sure this is all fine and well, but our dear Tom Jones could not be long tortured with such pangs of inability to find space to express himself, what with Shakespeare, Spencer and must we mention it, Lady Chatterley all in the same curriculum. And the existentialists, the romanticists, well, gentle reader, I should prefer not to speculate upon subjects which would offend the modern, sophisticated gentleman student of our language.

"Pardonnez-mois, messieur, que lengua estoy hablando? Est-ce que je suis schizophrenic?" Could be. With Russian, Spanish, French, German and then classical Greek and Latin slipped into a beefed-up curriculum in foreign languages, there were moments when English did become Greek, and French Spanish, and . . . there might have been a few slipped tapes in the recording booths with some people talking two and three languages at once. But it was understandable; didn't even Mr. Krushchev at times speak with his feet?

Notable people have had various quotes about our life being as it is because the lives of those in the past were what they were. History is the study of the "were." Perhaps when we are "weres" our Cuban catastrophe and satellite competition will seem as ridiculous as the "Pig" war and armor for knights seem to us now. Western's History Department offers general and specialized history courses all dealing in the "weres" of the past, and bringing out causes and effects besides the lunacy and sense of the past.

Sousa might have rolled over in his grave to the rousing tempo of the marching band controversy. At any rate, Western's Music Department stood firm and so did the band. Putting marching aside, they did an about face and turned to the concert stage.

The strains of Vivaldi's Gloria added to the Christmas spirit at Western when the department gave its annual Christmas Concert. Faculty and student recitals throughout the year provided the Western student with glimpses into the college's musical talent.

Dunce caps are out of style now as a teaching discipline, and theories of paddling are against some of the theories of psychology — lest the child should get a teacher complex or something. (Though many teachers purposefully ignore this idea.) Discipline is only one of a mass of problems tackled in education courses. Techniques and lesson preparation, educational theories, and personality theories, besides the maintaining of interest in the perpetually bored young human animal, confront the would-be teacher.

Professional Education

After assimilating the ed. courses the pre-destined enlightener of the future generation gets to try out those theories which he has maintained and those techniques which he has adopted in becoming an official student teacher — perhaps in the Campus School, perhaps in a Bellingham or county school, or perhaps in a school in Skagit County. Survival of the fittest holding true, Western's academically armed students emerge victorious and a new batch of teachers leaves Western's incubation for jobs in the field after graduation.

“Adler, Jung and Freud; they changed the nation’s complexion — there must be a glandular connection.” The Gateway Singers used to pack in crowds as they plunked away on similar subterranean strings of the Western mind. But it took a whole psychology department to make the strains more than laughable; and with visions of Humbert Humbert leaping across a Western Student’s libido, there were moments when even a psychologist’s tongue might trip more than three times over the thought of Lolita.

Philosophy

Once upon a time, there was a wide-eyed freshman who didn't know what philosophy was. Still he sat discussing life and questioning ideas in the smoke-filled den of humanity that is the coffee shop. No longer is philosophy the deep, dark, and mystical subject it once was thought to be. Today it has become of interest to the average student. Western's new Philosophy Department is in keeping with the new look of the campus, and even more in keeping with the new aim of the campus—to produce more "thinking" men for today's thinking world.

Speech

Surrounding us at all times, from classroom lectures, to the mixed garble of the coffee shop, to the discussion of last night's party, to the rugged drawl of Huckleberry Hound blasting from the TV tube, speech is the key to the exchanging of ideas. The casual atmosphere of speech classes, gives the average podium-shy student with his note cards quivering in his hands, a chance to develop his speaking skill. Western's Speech Department gives the students the chance to partake in all phases of dramatics, to compete in different forensics activities, and to help other people through work in speech therapy.

New doors and old doors open and close as students move from room to room and building to building. Students and faculty come and go. Soon the new doors of today will become old doors and the structures going up today will in turn give way to new skeletons rising out of the ground in many tomorrows. Now we close the doors to classrooms and move on to equally familiar doors. Doors that to many students were "home" for several years.

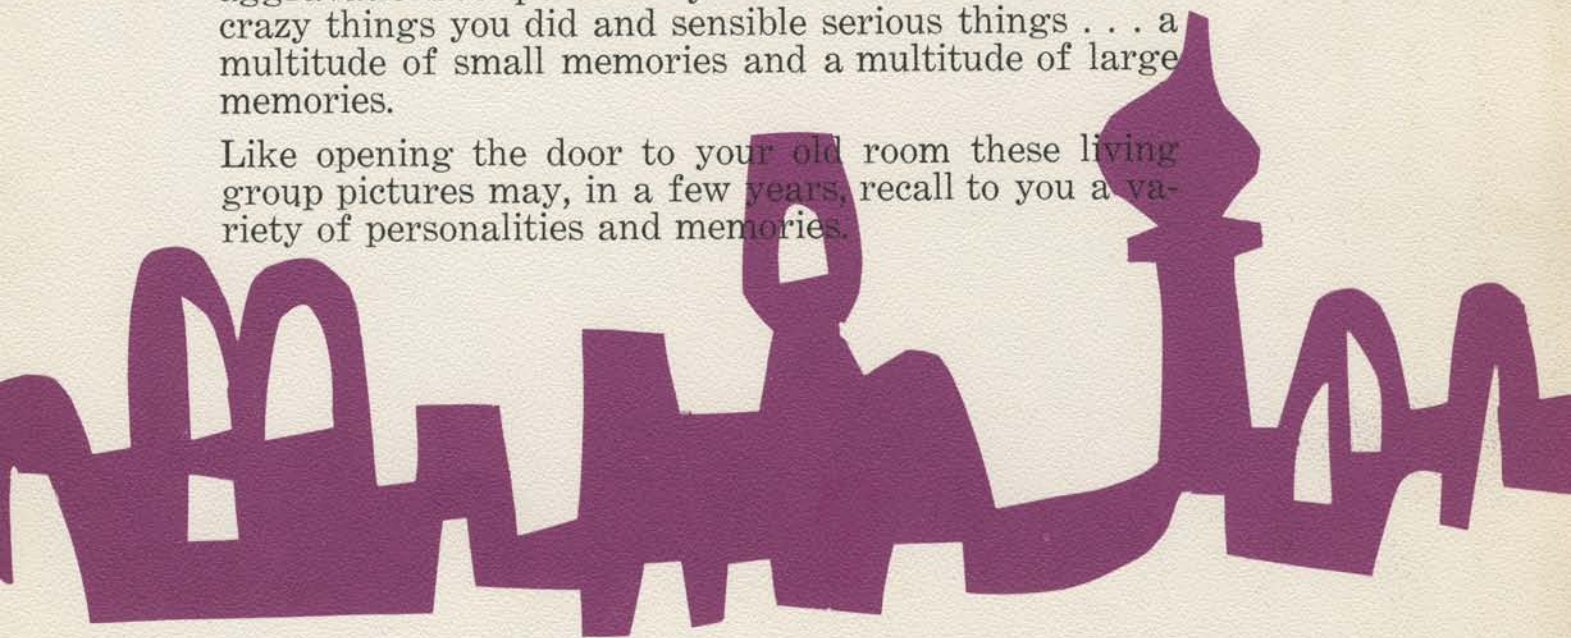

LIVING GROUPS

Our best friends and our most intense and enjoyable memories center within the house or dorm in which we stay. A large part of our time is spent there, sleeping, eating, studying, talking, griping, or just fooling around. A key to our personal development, our adjustment and activities within our living groups are an important faction of our college careers.

Remember the short sheetings and the practical jokes . . . the moral uplift of your friends when your current flame fizzled . . . working on your skit or display for homecoming . . . pizza with the kids downtown . . . the crowded bulletin boards on everyone's wall . . . the fire-sides and open houses . . . munching on goodies with a gang in your room and playing records and gabbing . . . phone calls or no phone calls (also mail or no mail) . . . after date gab . . . serenades . . . frustrations and aggravations . . . personality clashes . . . close friends . . . crazy things you did and sensible serious things . . . a multitude of small memories and a multitude of large memories.

Like opening the door to your old room these living group pictures may, in a few years, recall to you a variety of personalities and memories.

ORGANIZATIONS

An education is many things in addition to the customary classes, books, and exams. The college personality develops in many ways. The many clubs and organizations at Western provide the student with social, learning, and service opportunities. When the student looks back over his career at Western one of the things that will stand foremost in his mind is the memory of the many enjoyable evenings spent with people with like interests. Perhaps a memory appears of girls in roaring twenties outfits running around with pseudo gangsters to rouse interest in World University Service. Maybe your memories are of discussions about education, math, or literature. Perhaps the hours of fellowship with one of the religious organizations is among your pleasant recollections of Western. Here are the clubs and organizations in review for moments of nostalgia.

LEGISLATURE

The student Legislature, the governing body of Western's student government, handles over $100,000.00 when distributing the yearly budget. The key behind many major decisions, the Legislature affects everyone on campus.

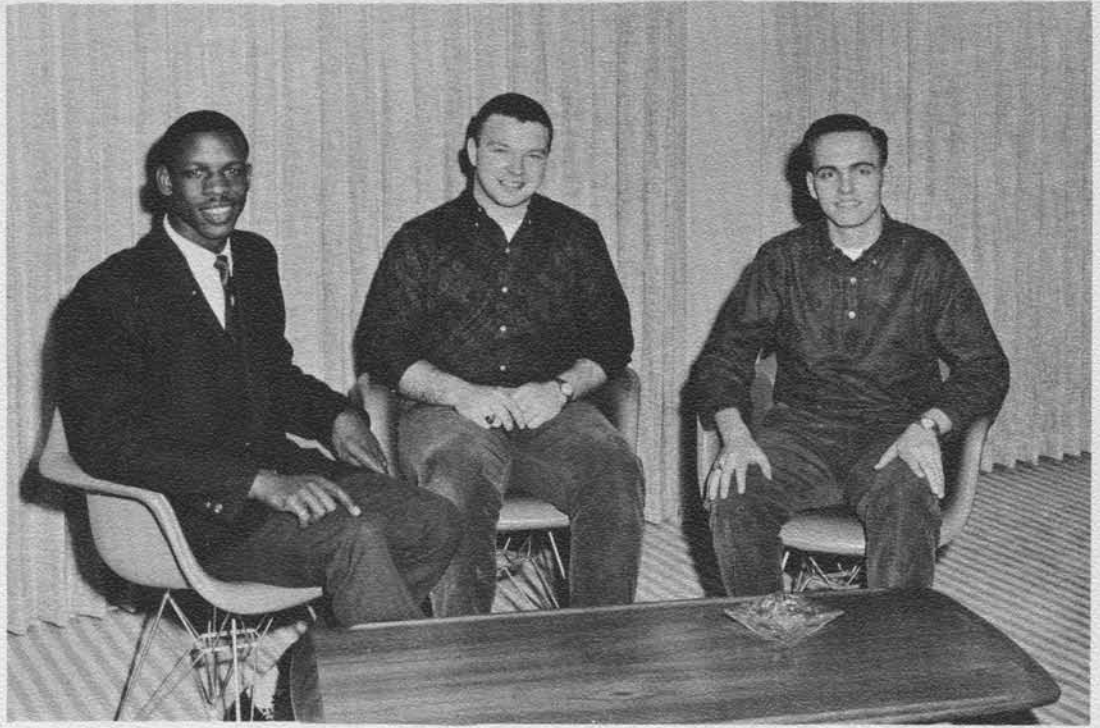

Whether it is a "puppet show," or an active "thinking" board, the Blue Blazer set, sitting along a long narrow table, is the backbone of the campus government.

SOCIOLOGY-ANTHROPOLOGY

The Sociology-Anthropology Club consists of a small group who are interested in Sociology and Anthropology. During the fall and winter quarters the group discussed Social Darwinism, as found in Hofstadter's book, Social Darwinism In American Thought. Spring quarter the club's discussion and research centered around the Sociological problem of Capital Punishment.

Proud of last year's trophy for outstanding activities, members of the Student Washington Education Association continued to offer insights into the teaching profession. S W E A sponsored a series of meetings on placement procedures, awarded a scholarship, assisted with Career Day, and sent delegates to various conferences throughout the year.

Amid clouds of cigar smoke in the basement of the Viking Union, publications advisor Jens Viggo Hansen sometimes approved and at other times disapproved of the actions of his staffs. Helping to obtain order out of a usually present chaos or offering suggestions and advice when it was needed or giving the necessary prodding about forthcoming deadlines, Hansen helped to keep Western's publications in circulation. Although seldom recognized and even more seldom thanked for his behind the scenes efforts, Hansen deserves commendation for his work.

Behind two brown doors in the VU depths, in a stimulating canary yellow room the Klipsun staff toiled away diligently to produce this year's annual. Niel Pfundt (an art major) and Stacy Tucker (a ghost from last year) assumed coeditorship to come up with this year's "magazine type" Klipsun which boasted a magazine approach to the different sections among which was the interesting Campus, Country and Community section.

Collegian

This year's Collegian under the editorship of Doug Simpson presented the Western reader with a somewhat conservative version of the modern magazine format conceived last year. The news magazine remained, none the less, a center of comment and controversy.

Karen Bainter, feature editor, provided a lively and interesting presentation of the controversy about campus ranging from the marching band incident to a witty dissertation on girls' house rules.

Marshall Bronson and Stacy Tucker supplied the years columns, Bronson setting forth his "Marshall Plan" and Tucker bringing Eastern thought "Out Of The East" into the Western world.

ASSOCIATION FOR CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

A C E is the student branch of the professional organization of the Association for Childhood Education International. Using the theme "The Child and the Community" the club based their fall quarter programs on phases of community life in which the child takes part. Winter and Spring quarters they worked with community children.

One of the few groups on campus with a "Greek" name (A-R-T), this active little group was responsible for hosting an art exhibit, as well as contributing program designs and posters for the Drama Department offerings. For their own entertainment and enlightenment, the group made trips to several art exhibits.

Kappa Delta Pi, national education honorary on the campus of WWCE, meets once a month for a business meeting and study program of some aspect of education. Typical meetings of this past year have included a presentation of the Russian school system, and a comparison of the Italian and American school systems.

L S A, a member of the Lutheran Students' Association of America, meets weekly at the UCCF House, where topics chosen by the students are presented by faculty members and other guest speakers. This group of fellowship, fun, and activity begins in the fall with the L S A Banquet. Such events as carolling, skating, and beach parties furnish good times for all throughout the year.

MATH CLUB

The purpose of the Newman Club is threefold: to foster and deepen the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of Catholic students attending a secular college. Guest speakers and question and answer periods are included in the meetings. Various club socials, such as dances, picnics, and other recreational activities, round out the Newman Club program.

The purpose of the Mathematics club is to bring together students interested in mathematics and to nurture this interest. The club, now starting its second year, has played host to several visiting lecturers, has organized get-togethers, and has provided a mathematics help-service.

NORSEMEN

Composed of all men students on campus, the Norsemen sponsor the annual Norsemen's Ball, the All Sports Banquet and co-sponsor the Sweethearts Ball with their opposition AWS. Organization of a rally to promote the Civic Field, an issue in the city election and provision of refreshments for the football and basketball players after each home game are but a few of the activities of this club.

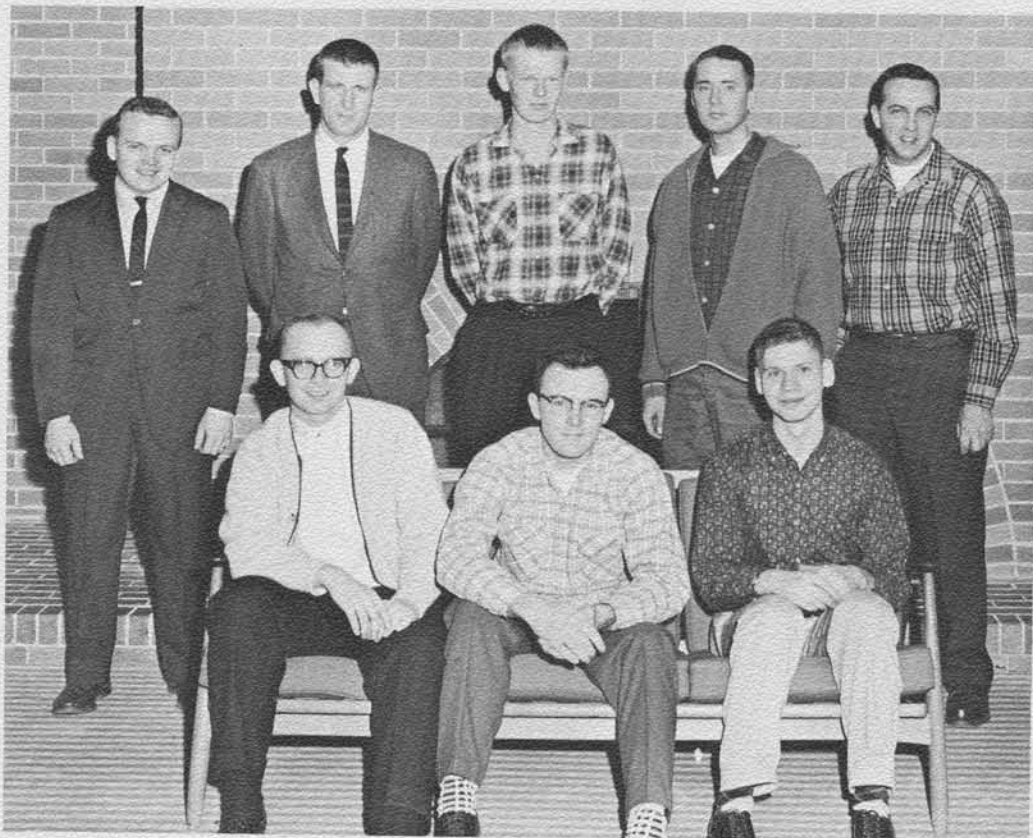

Interpretive dance is the main interest of Orchesis members. The club devotes itself to a study of the techniques of creative dance as a form of expression. During the year club members performed in Homecoming Skit Night and for special interest groups. The major project of the year was the Winter Concert in March.

STUDENT WIVES CLUB

The Student Wives Club, which was formed to further social relationships among wives of married students at Western, was entered this year as Western Washington College Chapter in the National Dames Club. The Club began this year with the annual Invitational Tea open to all wives of married students and all married women attending Western. About eighty members met the first Wednesday of each month, hearing speakers and seeing films. A Halloween party and an Easter egg hunt were held for the husbands. Thanksgiving baskets of food and clothing to two needy families, a rummage sale, attendance at a style show, and an Installation banquet climaxed by a candlelight ceremony, were other activities of the year.

THETA ALPHA PHI

Theta Alpha Phi is a National Honorary Dramatics Fraternity. The chapter at WWCE is the only one in Washington and it is an honor that the calibre of Western's dramatics activities are rated above other larger schools in the State. The organization exists for the promotion and continual improvement of College drama throughout the country.

The UCCF, under the direction of Rev. Lyle Sellards, has provided a variety of programs this past year including classes in religion, and taking part in the Faculty Speaks series. A new addition to its building, completed this year, gives the group more room for the various activities—social, religious, and intellectual, which the Foundation holds.

WESTERN PLAYERS

Reorganizing this year with a new constitution and bylaws, Western Players, the college dramatics club, gave active support to the college productions and undertook dramatic projects of its own. Meetings are highlighted by speakers or entertainment dealing in the dramatic vein.

Formed to further women's athletics at Western, the Women's Recreation Association takes part in athletic activities and sponsors athletic events. The WRA also held a carnival winter quarter, an initiation tea, parties, with the final event — culminating the year's activities, a weekend camping trip to Sinclair Island in the San Juans.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

The Young Democrats took an active part in the fall campaign. In working with the local Democratic Headquarters, they distributed literature and spoke to various groups throughout the Bellingham area. A mock election and three debates on pertinent issues of the campaign were co-sponsored with the Young Republicans Club.

The Western Washington College Sailing Club was formed in November, to organize those interested in sailing, or anxious to learn to sail. The club's first racing competition was the regatta sponsored by Seattle University in January, where they competed against one Canadian, and three American colleges.

THE YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Critics Club, an organization for those interested in the informal discussion of literature and kindred subjects, has enjoyed an increase in membership and enthusiasm. The lively and provocative bi-weekly meetings have been devoted to discussion and analysis of Eugene O'Neill's plays.

CRITICS CLUB

The Young Republicans Club worked hard in the fall mock election with a successful rally for Richard Nixon and Lloyd Andrews. Highlights of the year included speeches by Senator Lennart, candidate for Representative Starr, Congressman Westland, and Governor Hatfield of Oregon, and debates against the Democratic Club on Foreign Issues, Social Welfare, and State Issues.

SPORTS

The WWC athletic program continued to develop this year, showing every indication of growing to fit its new building. The crowds too seemed ready for a move to the new facilities as they overflowed the old area.

Rugby came into its own. Though considered a club activity, it led all the major sports in injuries.

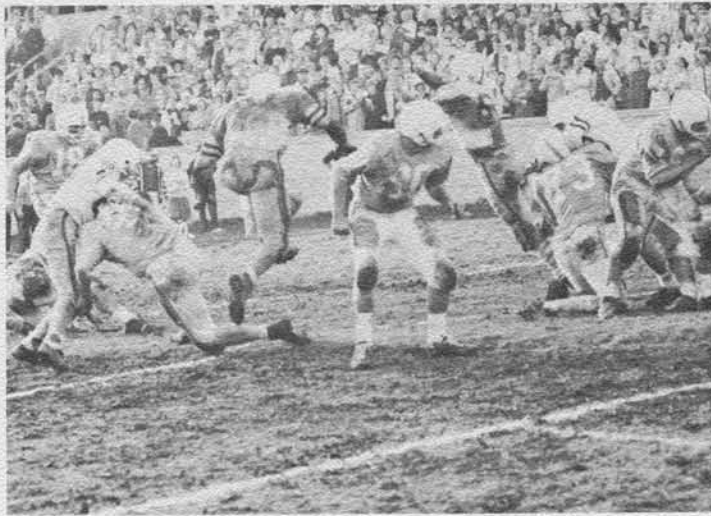

Two landmarks of the year: The construction of the new gym, with the eventual acceptance of the new roof style, and the passing of the bond issue for the civic field.

We look forward to even more successful seasons and no more games at Battersby Bog.

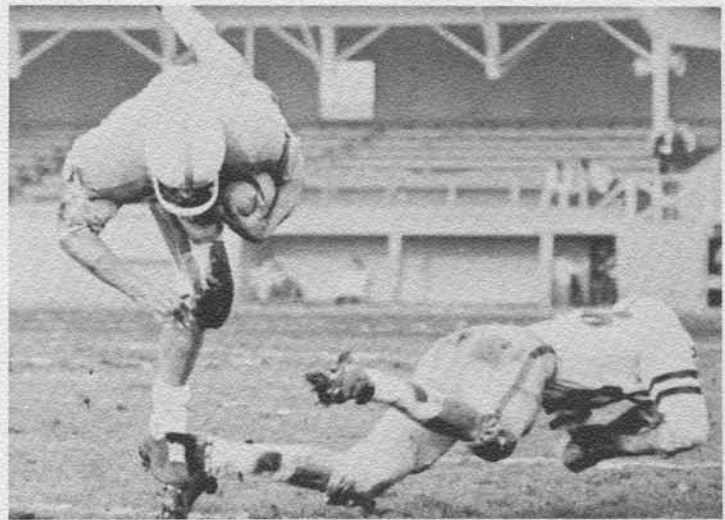

FOOTBALL

Western ended its 1960 football season in 4th place in the Evergreen Conference with a record of 2 wins and 7 losses. All conference halfback Ron Ladines repeated, for the second straight year, as leading ground gainer in the conference with an average of 4.7 yards per carry. Jerry Beringer, defensive end; Harry Leons, offensive tackle; and Gordon Martin, defensive line backer captured all conference honors along with Ladines. The highlight of the 1960 season was Western's thrilling 13-7 homecoming victory over the Savages of Eastern Washington. Losing only 5 seniors this year, Coach Lounsberry's hopes are very high for the coming season.

Western's basketball squad finished the 1961 season in second place in the conference with a record of eight wins and six losses. Herm Washington led all scorers with an average of 13.8 points per game. Outstanding play was also turned in by Jim Adams, Mike Kirk, Ron Saltis, Gary Mose and Jim Rife. The team was helped considerably by Dave Edwards who became eligible in the middle of the season. Losing only one starter through graduation, Coach Hubbard's hopes are very high for next season.

The Vikings, coached by Al Mathieson, climaxed the season after a 14-2-1 record. After a long season in which they moved from second to first division, the Vikings remained undefeated after they became a first division club. The Vikings made their second annual trip during spring vacation to the International Tournament in Monterey, California. They played five games and won four which gave them a third place consolation finish behind Stanford and U.S.C. The Ruggers played C.O.P. in the final match, defeating them 13-3. Several team members attempting to help the sport spread to the high schools of the state, have been voluntarily coaching a first year team at Nooksack Valley High School.

DENNIS SHEPHARD

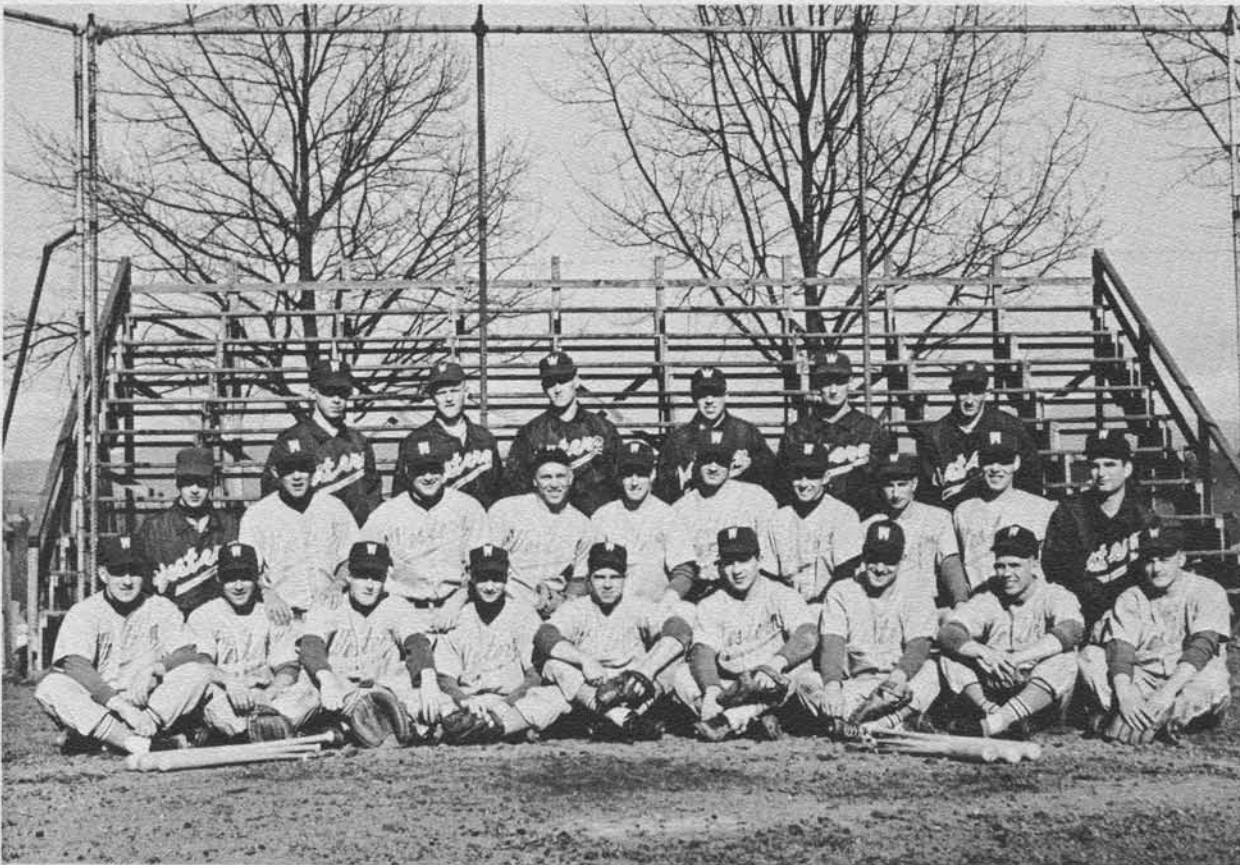

BASEBALL

STEINER

With high hopes and a host of talented ballplayers, Western's baseball team started on the road of the 1961 season. The team opened the season by losing to the University of Washington, but bounced right back to take a double header from Pacific Lutheran University. The main battery for this season appears to be Doug Ringenbach and Harry Leons. The team was helped immensely by University of Washington transfer, Dave Edwards. If the beginning of the season is any indication of what is to come, Western should have a very successful year.

TRACK

The 1961 track season got under way with a three way meet at the University of British Columbia in which Western took such stalwarts as Jerry Joyce in the sprints; Don Trethewey, N.A.I.A. Steeplechase Champion; and Dave Page, Evergreen Conference half mile record holder. Losing some promising freshmen through ineligibility, Dr. Ciszek relied on his returning lettermen to garner most of the points this season. After the regularly scheduled season, all eyes were on the conference meet at Central in May.

composed of Hyatt, Zapffe, Kinkella, and Donovan smashed the conference record. Other records were smashed by Kinkella in the backstroke and Donovan in the backstroke. Losing only two seniors this year, Western will be a strong contender for the conference championship next season.

With the appearance of spring, Coach Lappenbusch's tennis team returned to the courts for the beginning of another season. The team looks as ineffective in preseason play as it did last year, but we must remember that last year the doubles combination of Bertrand and King knocked the highly touted Whitworth duo out of the N.A.I.A. championships. Veteran Chuck Bertrand will undoubtedly be the mainstay of the team this year, and Zagelow and Johnson will be backing him up in the second and third spots. Also the team has registered definite improvement clear down through number ten on the varsity tennis ladder, which gives a promising indication for a successful season.

GOLF

Hit hard by the loss of Bill Wright, N.A.I.A. golf champion, Coach Lounsberry faces another rebuilding season. The squad is being paced this year by Lawrence Kent, a freshman from Bellingham; and Rick Weihe, also from Bellingham. Having very high potential, this young squad should benefit greatly from experience gained on the golf links.

ACTIVITIES

Among other things, this year was filled by: The blaze of homecoming bonfire . . . the red woolly underwear garbed "Savage" hanging from the balcony climaxing Skit Night . . . Dances and kings and queens . . . the swish of taffetas, satins, or chiffon with the air smelling of corsages . . . a ballet, and opera and concerts . . . BINGO at the WRA carnival . . . The WUS drive, activities and Bridgmano's regime . . . A & L Lectures, musicians or shows . . . One act plays, full length plays and children's plays . . . Countless other activities to be remembered by each person in his own particular way.

A year with activities wedged in between studies, and classes, between elections, weekends at home and hours spent in the coffee shop. Activities, acting as doorways to new friendships and the key to renewing and intensifying old friendships.

Pianist ALEXANDER UNINSKY presented a program of excellent classical music.

PHILLIP HANSON portrayed Shakespeare's "Kings and Clowns."

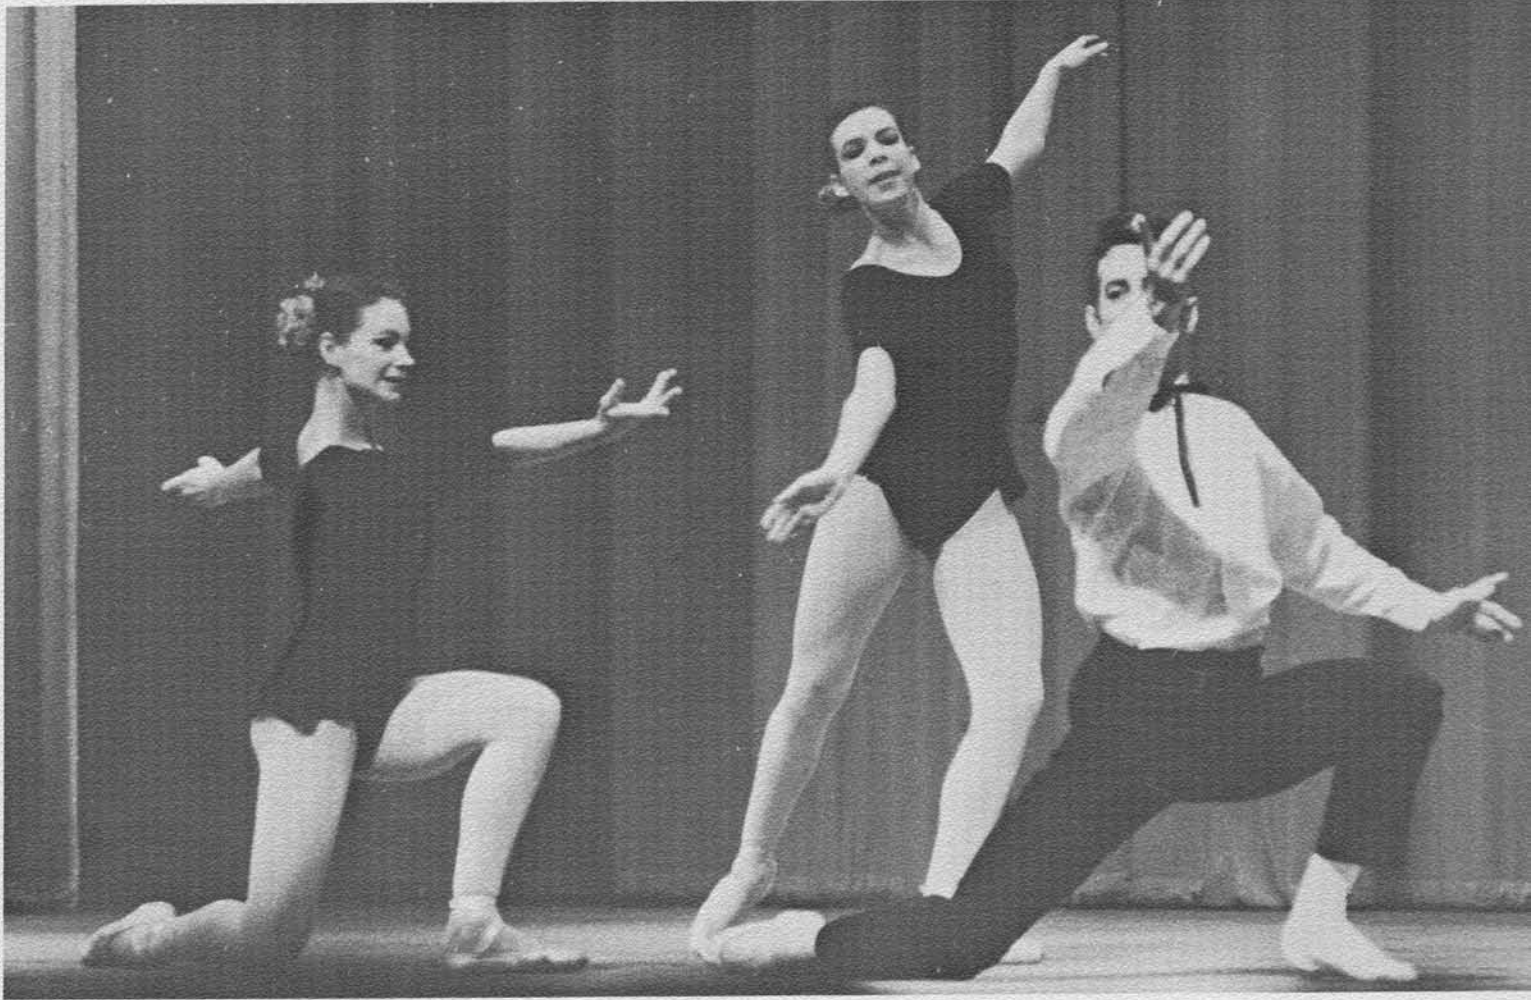

A window to culture and information, Western's Artist and Lecture series enabled students to benefit from the lectures and performances of renowned persons.

The first program of the fall quarter was the United States Navy Band which delighted students with the quality of its performance and the excellence of arrangements.

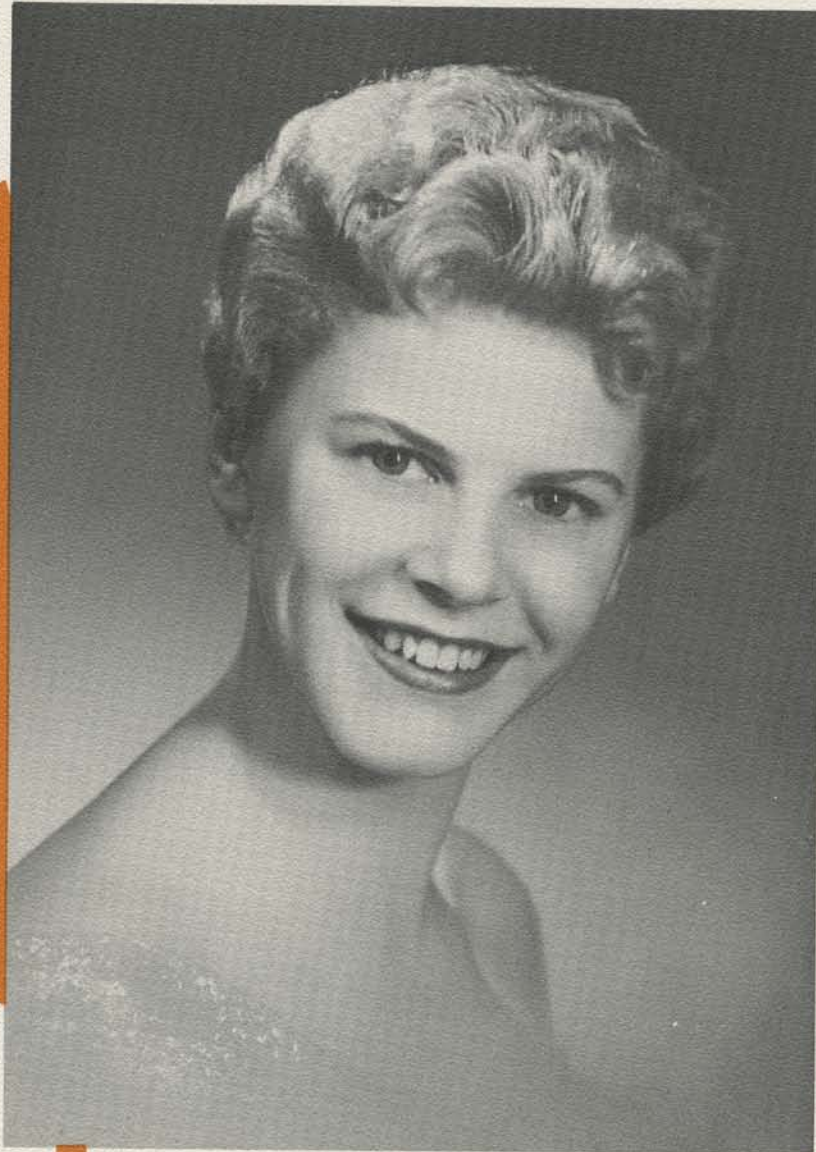

Madama Butterfly; a full-scale opera was also presented. Beautiful music and colorful Oriental costumes transformed Western's stage for an evening. Next the stage was switched to Shakespeare as Philip Hanson brought the great writer's heroes to life in his portrayal of "Kings and Clowns."

The variety continued throughout winter quarter, with the Pacific Ballet presenting an excellent program. William Kelley, author-editor-lecturer added a dash of humor and truth with his lecture, "Is Anger the Answer to Conformity." Nightclub entertainer and satirist, Anna Russell, packed the auditorium for her spoof on music and songs, using facial expressions, a powerful singers voice, and sparkling wit. A deep-sea explorer, a tenor, and an expert on Africa completed the quarters A & L diet. During spring quarter musical programs dominated. Alexander Uninsky presented a piano concert. An organist, Lawrence Moe, gave a very inspiring recital.

DR. JARRETT enjoyed the evening — and the band played on.

Fall Play—Hotel Paridiso

HOTEL PARIDISO

Ridiculous and complex situations, stereotyped characters and fast pace characterized the fall production. Dennis South as the henpecked Boniface rebelled against his domineering wife, played by Julie Waddell, and cavorted about with his best friend's wife (Alice Swerfeger). Clever costuming, a well-constructed intricate setting, and a variety of different character types were the outstanding features of Hotel Paridiso directed by Dr. Kenneth Lyman.

THE SKIN OF OUR TEETH

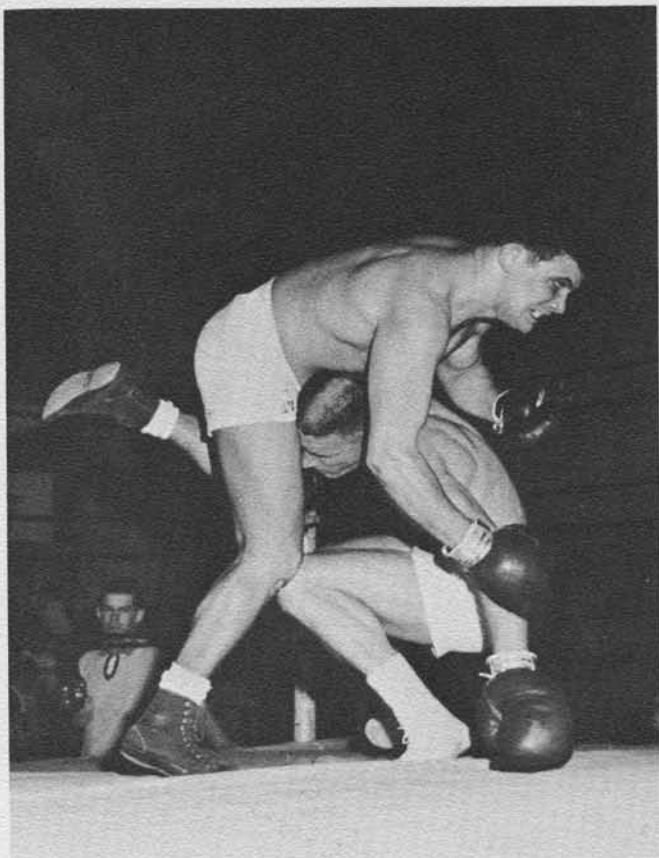

The Antrobuses and their maid Sabina with a scattering of various characters including even a dinosaur and mammoth were part of a play which remains in people's minds. Winning the Pulitzer Prize for author Thornton Wilder, the play encompasses the ice age, the flood and a war. Lighting effects were well handled, and Diane Nygaard, Jim Walker and Alice Swerdfeger did commendable portrayals of the leading roles under the direction of Dr. Harry Stiver.

CLASSES

After completing heaps of tests and adding signatures and notations to countless forms, the muddled fuddled and sided freshmen cautiously investigate that mysterious concept known as higher education. Cautiously they open many doors to classrooms and to opportunity and knowledge. Finding the key to the illusive art of learning the freshmen advance, become sophomores and juniors, and if their luck continues and their knowledge piles up uncontaminated and in proper forms they eventually become that rare and wise creature, the college senior.

Within these pages are class pictures; here you will find present friends, "hi!" acquaintances, faces vaguely familiar, total strangers, and people who will be your friends in the future.

J. Brightwell, D. Barker, D. Eldering

With an ever increasing enrollment our registrar's staff working with registrar Ferris have more and more work to do . . . behind the scenes these people rush about to take care of those things that keep a college running smoothly from a technical standpoint.

D. Bulton

D. Eldering

J. Oiness

*Images of a city, a town wrapped close around a bay, hang like shadows below the caves of a dreaming eye.
From out a mental doorway a dusty carpet comes flopping,
jumps, unrolling toward the hills,
bumping into mountains,
dipping in jerks into lakes and evening-shadowed valleys,
to twist to a final spasmodic halt
at the feet of the city where a stream of smoke drifts with the tidesmells tiredly out to meet the sea.
Shadows shift and merge, the picture weaves,
moves in upon itself and churns.
In some cool cellar of the mind
young and old have bubbled together in the afternoon heat,
now drift out to be distilled by the evening winds that crawl along the bay and lakeshore touching drops of ambrosia to the sleeper's lips.
The eyes and mind have sipped
and nursed the subtle taste of line and curve,
of light and mood, tangled motion then solitude,
that merge in the aperitif of the college life,
served in the evening dining room where curtains billow at a window opening onto a darkened garden of smells and moistures, of —*

*In the bay, the tide-slap bathes the warming backs of boats that sit restless in sunshine, waiting for a night when the motors will churn, the floats jerk at their mooring ropes, when motor-roars will rush across wakes in the black water and the boats will pull out to sea, lights like magic wands atop their masts,
a fleet of fairy-barks gliding majestically into a mystic liquid night.*

*Peace comes here in early evening when trails of exhaust have settled like dew.
On the hilltop when night is approaching
there is a settled calm that belies
the daytime that's moved away for only a time.
It will be back tomorrow
when breezes that might have played on Olympus
come dancing across the bay at noon, ruffling the water, slapping lightly
at thighs of sleeping timbers, capriciously slipping up and down canyons of crumbling buildings that used to hold a battlement up to dawn.
Out of the East, a gentle breeze comes shuffling, dancing lightly, whipping bits of dust in the walker's eye.
The sun lies hot between old images
in corners of the city's past;
where cascades of light tumble
through amber glasses,
rush glinting over twisted gold
to hang suspended in the noon-day glow.*

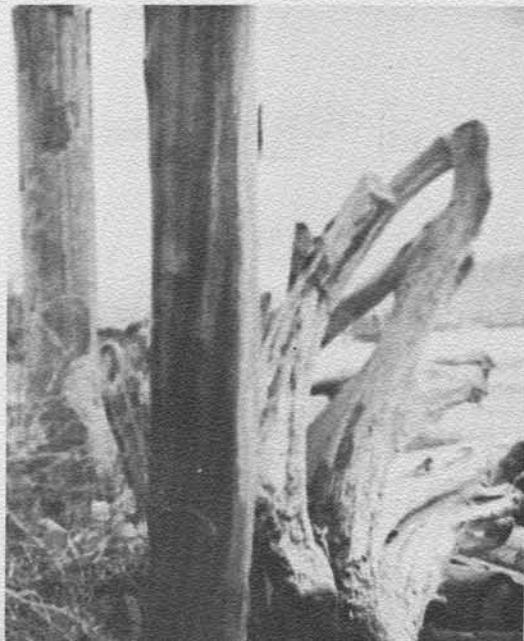

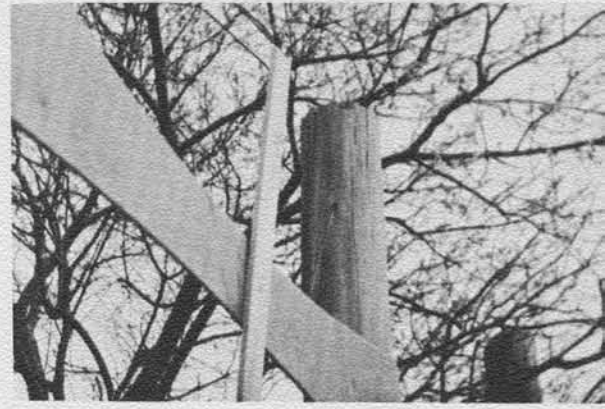

*In the midst of traffic
the city is jerked movement;
a red light
and the walkers move,
a blink of green
and the motors roar.
Raucous horns
punctuate the heat of afternoon and a whiff of breeze
through a shadowed window
dashes the signs and shoppers
into a rushing kaleidoscope
of pressure bearing down.
The accelerator meets the floor
and sound falls back,
a stretch of freeway beckons,
a curving line
moving out to freedom,
peace, soft breezes,
green fields,
and the rolling countryside.
A driver sighs, leans back and wheels hum and thump
on highway's texture
to a new rhythm,
of miles unwinding
over the day-dream of afternoon.*

*The roar of speeding motors dies at evening in darkened coves, and pilings and dark sand stretches remain to meet the jewels that sunset drops along the shores.
In those dim hours an eagle soars,
a cloud hangs low in a tired line along the stretching horizon,
a white fence leads to a darkened country road,
a piece of driftwood lifts its arms
in the final obeisance of matter to the daytime's frenzied ritual.*

*In the gray of morning's chill damp breezes whip across the windowsills
but at evening sunlight rains in golden drops, splashing softly on the silken top of dark, wide water.
In the light and over the dark is the real city,
the moment in the street when old meets new,
a grunt of disdain, a protest of wonder,
a hazy sleep in the summer sun,
and the view is capped by a dip in the day
when sunset pushes the hours down to tumble below
the bay.*

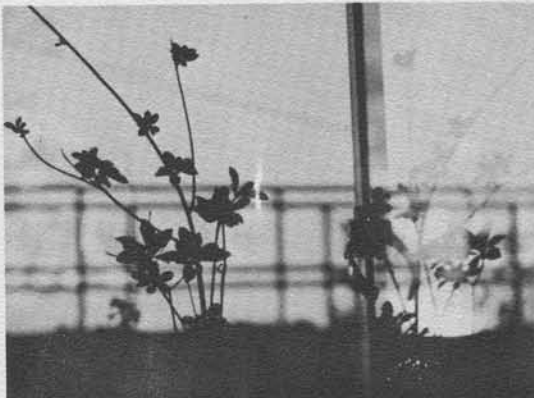

*Fading beams fall then through a glass of nectar squeezed from the grapes of now, aged in the casks and dews of then,
to those who sip, a taste of many wines in the evening.*

*College is the mind wandering while below the seagull cries,
is the mind wondering while the water laps,
is the thought forming while the city sends a glow up into the black night.*

*College is the doorway to a new land,
while just a few feet away from the mental pioneer's struggle,
an old piling offers a cross to evening, holds its silent communion with the dying sunrays dancing down the bay, moving beyond the boatmasts, fading slowly toward the dimming glow of horizon.*

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is indeed fitting in a publication of this type to give a word of thanks to those people whose efforts have helped a great deal to the success of the publication.

As usual we want to extend a sincere "thank you" to "Uncle" Howard Vierling and our behind-the-scenes friends Lois Brechner and Kay Tirrill at Craftsman Press in Seattle. They helped us to meet our continually changing deadlines. These people and Russ Clift, Mrs. Clift and Bernice Workman at Jukes Studio were looked upon as Honorary Staff Members during our running to and fro the last weeks of preparation for deadlines.

Mrs. Cecil Hite, smiling ASB finance secretary, got us out of various troubles with our budget and was always cheerful throughout the whole process.

Last, but not least . . . below view two "late arrivals" on the staff who made up for lost time with really top notch work.

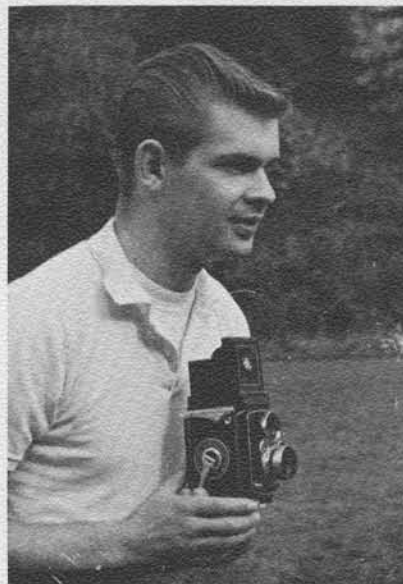

There are others . . . and to these we say thank you for your help . . . and God bless you!
