Paleo-botanist Arnold Finds Whatcom County Rare Fossil Hunting Ground

By Elaine Ringstad and Margaret Bryan
Dr. Chester A. Arnold, distinguished Michigan paleo-botanist, has been in Bellingham this week doing fossil research work for the University of Michigan. His expeditions have been conducted along Chuckanut drive and south of Larrabee State park near the railroad.

Dr. Arnold had excellent success in his search for fossils, as could be seen from the large collection he had packed and made ready to send to Michigan university.

"I found most of my best specimens in Whatcom county. This territory is especially rich in fossils. Most of the fossils around here are of the Cenozoic Age which indicates that this climate was once tropical, like that around the Gulf of Mexico."

At the invitation of Miss Sundquist, Dr. Arnold spoke before the sixth grade in the Training school, telling the children the meaning of the fossils which they had collected during the past year. Miss Channer, sixth grade teacher, expressed the appreciation of the children and herself for the talk.

"What is paleobotany? My definition would be that it is a combination of geology and botany, dealing with plant and rock formations," replied Dr. Arnold in his calm, quiet voice. Dr. Arnold received his degree at Cornell university and is now a Phi Beta Kappa. Much of his research work is published in scientific and botanical journals. He expects to have a text book on paleobotany published within the next year or so.

Student Union Committee Goes Ahead With Latest Plan

Last night at a meeting of the Student Union Building committee, Arthur Clark was appointed to contact various furniture firms in town with a view to securing bids on the necessary furniture for the little gym. Oak furniture in an Early American style was chosen as the type that would best suit the contours of the room and the heavy wear that it would be subjected to.

It is hoped that the plans for the room that Miss Breakey and Miss Plympton's classes have been working on will be ready for the next meeting, so that definite steps can be taken to have the room furnished and ready for use by the beginning of spring quarter.

Betty Rusher and Shirley Heaton were appointed by Frank Shiers to help on the committee. The next meeting will be held November 18.

"It is hoped that concrete evidence of the work of this committee will be forthcoming immediately afterwards," said committee head Frank Shiers.

City Schools, WWC Co-operate In Education Week Program

Nation-wide Observance Celebrated in Bellingham By Radio Talks, Movies, American Education week will be celebrated in Bellingham from November 9 to 15 with a series of radio talks, public school demonstrations, and motion picture showings, according to an announcement from President W. W. Haggard's office this week. Western Washington college faculty and students will participate in the events of the week.

Beginning Sunday, the Bellingham radio station will broadcast a series of talks by Whatcom county educators on the theme of week, "Education for a Strong America." Motion pictures narrated by Lowell Thomas will be presented in the several theaters each day also carrying out the educational idea.

The grade and junior high schools of the city are planning special programs for the benefit of the parents as are WWC training schools.

Committee Named
The Bellingham committee in charge of the week's programs include: A. E. Bowsher, principal, Fairhaven junior high school; Bryan Lewis, teacher, Bellingham high school; Carl Irish, principal, Roosevelt and Silver Beach schools; Lee Rankin, principal, Lowell school; Allan Carroll, teacher, Bellingham high school; Kenneth Ireland, member, Board of Education, Bellingham; Dr. W. Guild To Play 'Jane Eyre'

"Jane Eyre," a strange, romantic story of two very emotional people, will be the next production of the Bellingham Theatre guild. Opening night is set for Wednesday, November 12, and the play will be shown each evening through Saturday, in the Civic playhouse on Prospect street.

The play is a clever stage adaptation written by Marjorie Carleton and based on the celebrated novel by Charlotte Bronte. "Jane Eyre," who is not really the beautiful type of leading lady, is a very intelligent orphan girl who goes to work at the estate of "Edward Rochester," also very intelligent. Something in Rochester's past life comes to light in the course of the play and a barrier is set up between the two young people until the difficulty has been ironed out. The entire play has a sinister, mysterious aspect about it that should make it even more interesting to the audience.

In her version of the play, Miss Carleton has reduced the size of the cast considerably, making it much simpler to present and a much more effective dramatization than former theatrical interpretations of the same story. Leading the cast of eight is Alvina Temple, a Bellingham high school junior, who will portray Jane Eyre, the sensitive, devoted heroine. Playing opposite her will be Jack Falkner who will be Rochester, the turbulent, Byronic type of leading man.

Assisting with the supporting roles will be Eileen Morrison, Vale Tabor, Englese Ottestad, Mrs. Pa. (Continued on Page Two)

PE Department Cuts 'Embarrassments'

Doors in the physical education building were numbered last week to help new students and visitors find their way around the multi-doored campus gymnasium.

The improvement is designed to eliminate many embarrassing situations, save time, make unlikely such remarks as: "Hey, out of here!", and, more polite, "I beg your pardon, ma'am, but this is the men's department."

The door leading into both men and women's shower rooms as well as the outside doors leading into the cages have the proper inscription on them. Also the WRA room has its name written on the door. "Maybe we won't have quite so many embarrassing intrusions from now on," said Miss Ruth Weythman, women's PE director.

Nationally Known Work Shown In Art Exhibit

Prints From American Society Of Etchers on Display; Arms, Eby, Represented

An exhibit of one hundred selected prints from the Society of American Etchers will open tonight in the Art department. These prints, including work in dry point, aqua-tint, and mezzo-tint, are on tour following exhibition in New York. Work of artists from all over the country is represented, including prints by John Taylor Arms, Peggy Bacon, Kerr Eby (famous for his war prints), John Sloan, and Reginald Marsh. The work of Helen Loggie, nationally known Bellingham artist, is shown in one of her best prints, "Shuksan in Winter."

Says Miss Hazel Plympton: "We are glad that we can have the exhibit in time to celebrate national art week, and that it will be here over parents' day and Homecoming, as that will give so many more people a chance to see the prints."

Four hundred people have been invited to the opening, and all students are welcome to come during the two weeks and bring their friends and parents. The exhibit will be here until Thanksgiving vacation.

Fall Play Goes 'Penthouse'

Cast members for the fall production "George Washington Slept Here" have been rehearsing for the last few weeks and the play will be presented on November 27, 28, and 29 in Edens Hall Blue room. The play, a three-act comedy by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, has been adapted for presentation in penthouse style by the Division of Drama under the direction of Victor Hoppe.

Penthouse productions are something rather new at WWC. About five years ago Mr. Hoppe began them with the play "Personal Appearance" and he has given one each fall quarter since that time. In this novel fashion of play production, the players perform, not on a regular stage as usual, but rather in the center of a large room with the audience on all four sides. This brings the audience into closer contact with the actors and tends to make them feel as if they too are taking part in the play.

The last week of this month the Blue room will be transformed into a penthouse theatre in which "George Washington Slept Here" will be presented to the students of the college.

Scott Addresses Group on Defence

With many of their former fellow-students serving in various branches of the military services of the United States, college students should be vitally interested in the coming lecture of Howard Scott, Director-in-Chief of Technocracy, Inc.

Mr. Scott will address a public meeting in Bellingham on Friday evening, November 7, at 8 o'clock, at the Whatcom Junior High School auditorium. His subject will be, "America's Offensive," and he will deal with current trends in the field of the national and international operations.

In commenting on the national defense, Mr. Scott remarks: "The lack of planning and design in our national operations is endangering not only our entire program of defense but our whole national economy."

Tickets for the Scott lecture may be purchased at the local section headquarters, 312 West Holly street, and at various places throughout the city. Student tickets are half price.

Reigns Next Week

Miss Monson is prominent in extra-curricular activities at WWC, serving as president of the Associated Women students and the Board of Control.

Cornerstone Rites For New Building Performed Tuesday

For the purpose of placing records in the cornerstone, which is part of the foundation of the new elementary school, the seventh graders of the Campus School held a ceremony in the college auditorium Wednesday, November 5.

The Junior High orchestra opened the program by playing "Meditation" by Handel. This was followed by short talks given by the seventh graders. John Paul Jones, architect of the new elementary school, spoke concerning the history of cornerstone laying.

Sealed in the box in the cornerstone were the following articles: The signatures of all children in the Campus school in 1941. The signatures of the teachers of the Campus school in 1941. The signatures of the college students who taught in the school during this year. An United States flag with forty-eight stars. Pictures showing the kinds of work children do in the Campus school. Names of architects, contractors, and administrators who have been responsible for the planning and building of the new school. A picture of the new building. A 1941 penny, nickel, dime, quarter, fifty-cent piece, a dollar, an aluminum tax token, a plastic tax token, an adult bus token and a bus token used by the children of Bellingham.

The program of the ceremony. These articles were presented by the two representatives from each class while the orchestra played. The ceremony closed with the orchestra playing and the audience singing "America The Beautiful."

Miss Ruth Melendy, eighth grade instructor, was in charge of arrangements for the ceremony.

Scribes To Meet

There will be a meeting of the WWC Collegian Editorial council at 4:00 p. m. Monday, November 10, in the WWC Collegian office.

The convention also nominated Pratt to compete for the four quarter women's position; Don Brown and Art Brock were selected for the one quarter man or woman vacancy.

These students were nominated from lists the various clubs of WWC submitted to the convention. There were thirty-four representatives from these clubs attending the convention.

the election will be the move to change the alma mater to "The White and Blue," and that the present alma mater be retained as a fight song.

Alumnus Writes 'Psych' Book

Dr. Neal E. Miller, former student of WWC, and son of Dr. Irving E. Miller of the Education department, has written, in collaboration with John Dollard, the book, "Social Learning and Imitation," which was published, October, 1941.

Miller attended Western Washington college for one year and continued his education at the University of Washington, where he received his bachelor's degree, and at Stanford. After receiving his doctor's degree at Yale, he was given a research scholarship, and went to Europe where he spent one year in Vienna making a special study of psychology. He is now Research assistant in psychology at Yale.

John Dollard is Research associate in Social Anthropology at Yale university.

This book begins with a brief non-technical resume of the fundamentals of a theory of social learning. The cultural conditions and psychological principles of social learning are exemplified in experiments on imitative behavior.

Experiments were made on children of different ages and on animals. They made a study of prestige: The older person over a young person, the intelligent over the less intelligent, etc. The fact is brought out that imitation may be learned and is not entirely instinctive.

L. A. Kibbe, of the department of education, says, "I have read 'Social Learning and Imitation' (Continued on Page Two)

AS WE SEE IT

By Frank Shiers-Derry Conlee

Now that we have almost recovered from our attack of mid-quarter exams, it seems to me to be a most opportune time for us to analyze the atrocities that students are subjected to under the guise of finding out what they know.

It seems strange that in a school where each prospective student is required to take a course in the construction of valid and reliable tests, the teachers of other courses go blithely along their respective ways seemingly ignorant of all the advances that have been made in scientific testing and grading in the last fifty years. Psychology teachers, who should know better, are especially bad in this respect. Under the impression that they are testing your general knowledge, they are liable to ask you, "Who has done the most for mankind—Noah or Franklin D. Roosevelt?" The answer is quite apt to be "Roosevelt, because he was born in 1882 and collects stamps."

It may seem that I am going to extremes; but I have been asked the following question with just as much pomp and smugness: Is it true or false that the mental age of the average American is a little under 14 years? I put "True." The answer is "False." The average is a few days over 14 years. Seemingly, the fact that I knew it was very close to 14 was altogether neglected.

I do not mean that all teachers do this; but the fact that some of them do is sufficient.

No criticism is constructive without a solution. Here is mine: 1. When constructing your new tests give the items some thought. Don't scribble down the first thing that comes into your mind. 2. Test each question. (Continued on Page Four)

Sigrid IV, Rally, Game, Dance Included in Gola Plans To Welcome Returning Grads

With the exception of a few last minute details, plans for the 18th annual Homecoming, November 14 and 15, are complete, general chairman Art Brock announced yesterday.

Brock also announced that Kenneth Selby, principal of Seattle's Cleveland High school and WWC graduate, will be the main speaker at the Alumni Luncheon to be held in the Eden's Hall dining room. He urges all students to attend the luncheon and help make the "old grads" feel at home.

The luncheon will begin at 11:30 a. m., and, according to co-chairman Jean Pratt, will be officially over at 1:30 when busses will be at Edens hall to take fans to the football game. Tickets will be on sale all next week in the main hall. Alumni reservations should be made in the Dean of Men's office.

Margaret Dwelle, Liv Bruseth and Bob Muckey, co-chairmen of the assembly committee announce that six organized houses and five clubs have been selected from tryouts last Thursday night to present skits at the assembly Friday night, November 14. Also Dwelle says, they have selected six men as a guard of honor for Queen Sigrid IV and her court during the coronation ceremony which will be held during the assembly. President W. W. Haggard will crown Queen Sigrid IV, known to the humble as Bernice Monson.

Lytle Messinger and Frances Neevle, co-chairmen of house displays, say that all the organized houses are set with their displays. Several of the larger downtown stores have donated window space for the club displays.

Art Stenson and Eileen Reilly, co-chairmen of the rally committee, fall in line with the announcement that their program is complete. After the parade and rally downtown, Queen Sigrid IV will touch off the freshman bonfire and light the way for speeches by Mr. L. A. Kibbe, Dr. E. A. Bond, Coach Chuck Lappenbusch, and Phil Sarboe, the Ellensburg coach.

COLLETT COURT: The Collett Court gals head the list of "socialites" this week because of the swish dinner party at which they entertained the Hilltop boys Tuesday night. The placecards were very appropriate as well as original... cats for the skoits and wolves for the wolves. The only thing that the hostesses regret is that one of their group, Evelyn Peterson, could not be present as she was having a little party of her own in the infirmary. . . . Too bad, Evelyn! The dinner was planned by the house social secretary, Margaret McMillan, assisted by the housemother, Mrs. Brian Mulvaney. Only one more thing, do the Hilltop wolves really eat with their knives and blow on their coffee?

HARBORVIEW HALL: Harborview is all excited... well you would be, too, if a princess lived at your house! Bernice Elenbaas of Lynden, who was chosen to be the sophomore Homecoming princess is a Harborview girl... and don't think they aren't proud of her!

Flash! All Harborviewers reported as having a choice time at the last week's AWS informal... with the exception of one girl who says that she had a SUPER time (there's a difference) because she is beginning to admit that she is "desperately in love" with someone down home. (Please don't ask me what this is all about... if you must know, ask one of the Harborview tribe who are the only ones who understand... I don't.)

ENGER HALL: To recuperate from the nerve-wracking "mid-terms," the girls of Enger hall helped Dorothy Watson celebrate her 19th birthday, Monday, November 3. Dorothy was presented with a Fostoria cream and sugar set (for her hope chest... aha!) by the house members.

EDENS HALL: At a delightfully informal dinner party last Tuesday, Miss Powers entertained a group of girls from Edens hall. Her guests were: Jo Needham, Pat O'Meara, Lois Lowery, Eileen Reilly, Kay Finn, Betty Ann Groger, Betty Rusher, and Virginia Krueger.

BEVERLY HALL: Stop! Look! and Listen! More romance! Nettie Haw of Beverly hall Saturday night announced her engagement to Neal Dow of Bellingham. Congratulations and best wishes!

Another party at Beverly hall Saturday night celebrated the birthday of Ruth Nichols. The Halloween theme was carried out in decorations and refreshments and later in the evening all of the guests joined in popping popcorn. . . . Sounds good, doesn't it? These gals seem to like to do things in twos. . . . Tuesday night they again had two celebrations. . . . Mrs. Mabel Nichols, housemother, Nettie Haw, and Ruth Nichols entertained Donna Hammond, Jessie Holmes, and Marion Clendenen at a potluck dinner. Also, Marie Davis, Bernice Peters, Geraldine Wilson, and Betty Lee had a venison dinner on the same night.

FACULTY: WWC was represented at the Northwest College Personnel association meeting in Portland last week-end by Miss Lorraine Powers, dean of women; Dr. Merle S. Kuder, registrar; and Loye McCee, dean of men. Dr. Kuder was a participant in the panel discussion upon the subject of Personnel With Individual Institutions and was elected secretary of the association.

Miss Anna Ullin, English instructor, visited with relatives in Seattle last week-end and attended the football game between the West Seattle and Broadway high schools.

Warning to all Society and House reporters! All items for this column must be in our hands by 9 o'clock each Tuesday morning! If they are not there they will not be printed!

Yes, you bring your lunch; coffee will be served.

A VOLLEYBALL TOURNEY... is in the making. WWC co-eds are going in for volleyball in a big way. . . . There are now four teams entered in the tournament. The EVES FROM EDENS are managed by Virginia Kreuger, the BURLY GIRLIES are a town team, directed by Norma Stangle. The frosh team is called the MUSCLE MAIDS.

The teams played practice games Thursday, but the tournament will begin next week. There is still room for more teams. Incidentally, there is a boy's team which is challenging the winning girls team. . . . That's certainly a challenge, isn't it?

ADAMS SHINES AT POOL... Interest and enthusiasm ran high Monday as the Blue Barnacles met at the edge of the pool and learned from LYNDA ADAMS some of the finer points of diving. Lynda did the jack-knife, flying front somersault, back somersault and layout, half-gainer in pike, back dive with half twist, front one-and-one-half somersault, whole gainer and juke, and back-to-front somersault—ever heard of them before?

The girls spent the rest of the afternoon getting the "feel of the board." Nice springing was done by Joyce Phillips and Gerry Fegley.

Board Says Dance In Little Gym Tonight at 8:30

Come 8:30 this evening, and the dancing crowd of WWC will venture to the little gym for the junior-senior party. The two classes, acting jointly, will sponsor the first evening rec hour in many a long week. Johnny Merritt will bring his seven piece gang up the hill to provide a three hour program of the latest thing, according to Rec Hour Chairman Bill Junkin.

Bernice Monson, Co-op Board chairman, submitted the report of the Co-op for the past year. It was approved without question. Rosemary Watts was appointed to take the place of Mary Jean Moore, former WWC student, as sophomore representative on the Co-op board. It was announced by Dr. Bond that the Co-op is in very satisfactory financial condition. Its volume of business to date for the year is comparing favorably with last year's total at this time. At this time last year the student body numbered nearly 300 more than it does at present.

So far this year the profits in excess of game expenditures for football have exceeded $500, according to a report from the business office on November 5.

Dancing class members and afternoon rec hour devotees will be treated to the rhythms of eight new records, sixteen tunes in all, according to Bill Junkin, who recently made the purchase of the records.

New Megs Arrive For Homecoming

Yell leaders Vanderyacht, Carter, and Muckey will from now on rend the air through a set of new megaphones, purchased recently by the Board of Control.

The new speaking aids were obtained through the Co-op store. They will replace the battered or non-existent relics through which the lads have been attempting to lead WWC'ers to greater heights. The order for the megas was placed in time so that they would arrive before Homecoming. They came Monday, November 3, and they're now being painted with the college colors.

Strolling 'round the Campus

With Marilyn Manuel

I'm scared to write about the glorious sunshine today for fear it will be raining before the paper comes out, but just the same I think it should be mentioned. A game of tennis wouldn't be out of place at a time like this. Oh, well, we can all dream can't we?

If you want to see this so-called "glow of lovelight burning in the eyes" you should watch Don Brown dancing with the new Freshman Princess, Sheila Moore. And incidentally while mentioning princesses in my opinion (I know it isn't so good) I think the freshmen made a swell choice, how about you, don't you think so too?

Before I go any farther I think a couple of orchids (and to quote, "Yes, they do come in pairs once in awhile," unquote) should go to Ruth Culbertson for her swell job on the AWS informal. Numerous comments have been made about how clever the decorations and programs were and how nicely the dance was carried off. While I'm on the subject, I've just got to get it off my mind—did you notice the new system worked out by the boys this year?

Not bad, too, if they can get away with it. All the attention some of the gals received the week before the informal is astounding. You should see the rush they got in the Lib (cheaper than a show) and at the Inn (cheaper than down town.) Yes, those fellows really know all the tricks.

Would like to have been a little birdie and listened in on the conversation of Helen Jean Pratt (she just hates to be called Helen) and her alumni friend. Pretty smooth date, eh what, Jean?

From now on Ernie Lindell should be called, "Love 'em and Liv 'em" if you know what I mean. Don't worry, Ernie. California is a long ways and besides you're as big as Roy, aren't you?

Ah, yes, the time for Homecoming is approaching and with it comes all those promises and "swearing offs" that usually accompany such celebrations. We'll believe it when we see it.

The strangest thing happened the other day. I was over in the library (yeah, that's strange, too) and I saw a boy hold open the door for a girl to go through FIRST. Maybe the phrase I should have used is "pass out first," cause I imagine she felt like it. I could go on and tell you about the time I heard a fella say "Excuse me," too, but that's been so long ago I've sorta forgotten the details.

Gossip by Gilroy...

By Jim Gilroy

Royal Brougham, in a recent column, laments the fact that although the U. of W. Huskies have one of the best pass receivers in the country, Earl Younglove, they haven't anyone who can toss passes. No receiver, no matter how good he is, has much chance of snagging the ball if the passer can't throw it somewhere near him. It's just another example that proves teamwork to be the first essential of a good ball club. No matter what the game, a team without teamwork can't expect to get very far.

Pacific Lutheran's "Flying Circus" would be just another team if every man on that squad didn't play his part, a cog in a smooth working machine. Most of the publicity goes to Tommervik, and the Harshmans, but in reality every man is just as important as any other man on the squad. Tommervik and Harshman would be merely good players on an average squad if the Lute outfit had a weak man or two in vital positions. That's their strength—an absence of weaknesses; they just don't have many weak spots.

Take the WWC Vikings, however, and a different story unfolds. With all respect to the boys playing on the team, they simply haven't had that "extra something" this season. Early in the year it looked as though the Vikings had a chance to come up with an exceptional team this year, but thus far this has not been the case. Undoubtedly the Vikings have a good team, but that's all. They fought a good, hard battle against the Lutherans, but the Lutes had the smoother, cleverer, and faster team. The Vikings made one bad mental mistake in the Portland U. game, and they made more than one mental error in the PLC game. Part of this weakness can be traced to inexperience of some of the players; part can be traced to laxness on the part of some of the veterans. According to all reports the loss to Cheney was a case of a poor mental attitude, more than anything else.

Saw a dinger of a high school game in Seattle last Friday. The squads were quite evenly matched; the game was won by a single touchdown in the last two minutes of play. Found myself wishing I'd brought along a pair of ear plugs. . . . Those kids really made a lot of racket in support of their teams. The cheering was well organized, everybody knew the yells by heart; all the yell leaders had to do was start the ball rolling. Judging from the way the two teams fought tooth and nail it would seem that this active support was having good effect on the players.

Odd what a difference a year or two will make. Take the same kids two years later in college, and the noise they'll make in support of their college team will be quite a let-down from their high school experience. They seem to acquire a thing called dignity when they reach the higher educational institutions. It may mean poise and dignity to sit like a statue through a football game, but it certainly is a big loss to the color and quality of the contest.

St. Martins Rangers play host to the Vikings tonight. There should be quite a battle on the field as the Viks are out for their first official WINCO scalp, and the Rangers have a plenty tough squad this year. They held the PLC squad to 7 points several weeks ago. A logical mathematical deduction would give the Rangers at least a 7-point margin over the Viks. This column again sticks its neck out and predicts a 7-point margin for the Viks.

Viks Drop Contest To EWC Savages

Western Washington's hopes for a second place conference berth were blasted to nothing last Saturday as Cheney climaxed their homecoming by downing a stubborn Viking eleven, 14 to 6, before one of the largest crowds on record.

The first score of the game came in the third quarter when Joe Wilson, Savage left halfback, skirted his left end for 20 yards. Captain Ray Satterlee kicked the conversion. Wilson scored again late in the final period, going over from the 5-yard line giving Satterlee a chance to extend his placement kick record to 38 successful kicks out of 41 attempted.

The Viks' lone tally came in the fourth quarter as a result of a mid-field drive which saw Lon Musgrove, fullback, carry the ball over from the 18-yard line, on an off-tackle reverse. Western's only other scoring thrust came in the third quarter when they reached the Cheney 4-yard line, only to be held for downs.

'Pe Ell's Pride'

Bulwark of the WWC line is Alick Mitchell 200 pound center from Pe Ell. Alick is playing his fourth year at the center slot for the Vikings. St. Martins Rangers will get a taste of "Mighty Mitch's" blocking when they meet the Vikings in Olympia tonight. The Martians took the Ellensburg Savages by a large margin, and held Pacific Lutherans to 7 points, so it promises to be a real battle.

KEGLERS . . . Again the Faculty team . . . Thanks are due the faculty for turning up with a team in the College Bowling league. There was trouble in getting enough teams, so the faculty came across with a squad. Not only do they go in for the sport with great gusto, but they act "like the rest of the gang." It is really a great thing for the faculty to get in with the kids.

APOLOGIES . . . of the day go to the Sweepers, one of the teams in Intramural Basketball loop. As they are on top of the heap at the present reading, they say they should rate a few comments. During the first week, three wins and no losses—a fair percentage in any man's league. Doggone it, all the flowers of the week go to this game bunch of boys. The majority of them hold down sweeping beats, but they still come through. Congrats boys, keep the good work up. Apologies to Wayne, too.

CHIRPS . . .

TONY BEZZER of the Hospice gang looks like a football player when he comes out of a mixup with all the guys hanging around his neck. . . . DONELSON of the White Mice takes a lot of longs and makes a fair percentage. . . . Too bad the faculty hasn't a club in this loop, it would be good. . . . OLSON still looks good for the Edward's gang, can intercept with the best of them. . . . Looks like a scoring battle with MESSINGER of Edwards and HARKLEROAD of the Hospice outfit. . . . They used to hook up in Blaine all the time. . . . MICKEY SMITH looked good in the Hospice win over the Sweepers. The boy really can check. . . . RICHARDSON looks good for Daniels. . . . That's it for now. . . . See you next week.

WWC Vikings will venture into the St. Martin barracks tonight, to maintain their consistent record of victory over the Rangers in past years.

In previous WINCO league encounters, the Viks have had the edge on the Rangers, but not so this fall. The Rangers held the high-flying Pacific Lutes to a 7-0 score; tied Ellensburg in a conference game, then whipped the Wildcats, 20 to 0, in a non-conference game. The Viks lost to Pacific Lutheran, 25-6, and beat Ellensburg, 19-13, in a non-conference engagement. Statistics indicate a close contest.

Frank Sinclair, St. Martin's "ace in the hole," scored all three touchdowns against the Wildcats and, in addition, handled the passing and kicking assignments.

Diminutive Homer Cooper, 5-foot, 3-inch quarterback, is the reason for Coach Homer Hein's objection to playing on turf fields this season. Hein is afraid the opposition will forget to get the grass and that Homer will get lost among the taller blades and lose his sense of direction.

Before invading the Rangers' stronghold the Vikings will drill on defense and attempt to regain their scoring ability shown in the earlier part of the season.

Editorials . . . .

We're Behind Brock

Next week Western Washington college celebrates the biggest event of the year: HOMECOMING. Art Brock and his committees have worked feverishly the past few weeks to insure the students and grads the best time possible. There is no doubt in the minds of most of us that this year's celebration will be better than any of its precedents.
 The schedule for 1941 has been changed slightly by Chairman Brock; some students have condemned one of the changes; namely, the elimination of the Friday evening rec hour (meaning wreck on this occasion each year.)
 We, the students, have given the Board of Control the power to select the HOMECOMING chairman; he was selected in a democratic manner—he was given authority to plan the HOMECOMING festivities. Why condemn him for planning the event in a slightly different way? Why not give him a chance to use his own ideas? Four years ago Adrian Alberg dared to be different and the dynasty of the Sigrids began!
 Instead of hindering the chairman at this point with our petty condemning remarks, let us help him to make HOMECOMING the biggest success in eighteen years.

Faculty Members: Write Us a Letter

For the past several weeks the WWColegian has been receiving letters from the students of Western Washington college. These letters, some of which we were unable to publish, have been both critical and commendatory. It is our hope that the faculty will join the students in writing letters to the "Letting Off Steam" column in the WWColegian.
 We invite you all to criticize the newspaper, its columnists, and its policies.

Let's Improve Your Paper

In order to start the ball rolling, the editor takes the liberty of asking the following students and faculty members to comment on the WWColegian this week: Dr. C. C. Upshall, Miss Nora B. Cummins, Declan Barron, and Betty Marie Gilbert. When received, their criticism will be published in the WWColegian.

Explorer Capt. Craig Relates Experience In Philippines; 1946 Freedom Mistake

Captain John Craig, explorer, inventor, deep sea diver and author, whose own career description is "Danger is my Business," addressed the college students in assembly. Illustrative movies accompanied his topic on the Philippine Islands.

Starting on a career of engineering Captain Craig enrolled at the Union Tool Company Engineering school, Torrance, California, in 1921. A position of combination engineer, camera man, and co-director of motion pictures started him on his adventurous career. Later he specialized in adventures in jungle and under sea pictures. Interested in diving research John Craig was co-inventor and developer of Craig-Hahl helium diving apparatus. Other than his latest trip to the Philippines, Captain Craig has been to India, the Caribbean, and West Indies.

"We lost our grip on our little brown brothers" was his expression of our disloyalty to the Philippines.

"In 1946 the Philippines get their independence, which they don't want. The Empire of Japan, which has its eyes on the Philippines, lies very close; and all ready there are more Japanese on the islands than Americans. Most of the islands in the Philippines, of which there are 2,086 in all, have the feeling they were sold down the river and would sooner be run like hell by the Philippines than run like heaven by Americans. When the Philippines get their independence from the United States, the Morros, inhabitants of a small southern island, having forty feet of rich soil, four crops of corn a season, and many rich mineral deposits, will be turned over to Manila. As I traveled among the many islanders, some of whom are entirely primitive, they seemed to know what is coming."

Touching on the beauty of the sunsets of the peace loving islands, Captain Craig concluded his descriptive view point of the Philippine independence.

 tion for reliability and validity. If you don't know what these terms mean, take a course from Dr. Upshall and find out. 3. Don't give your students credit for knowing so many miscellaneous things. They could ask you many questions that you couldn't answer.

Dear "As We See It":
 Since last week something has been bothering me. Do college teachers make mistakes? It would look pretty presumptuous for me, a half-quarter freshman, to ask a question such as that of the instructors themselves; so I'm asking you.

Why don't they hand back our exams to us? Surely it is fair that after they have read and graded the papers, we should have them again so as to discover the cause of our faults. Also, it might be possible that an error was made in grading. Or am I to infer that college teachers are not human enough to make mistakes?

"DISGRUNTLED"
 Many of us feel as you do; but we've found that it's "ours not to question why." However, you are incorrect in your implication that the members of our faculty read and grade papers themselves. That seldom occurs. The task of grading is often handed to those who have had much less experience at that sort of thing.

Dear "As We See It":
 How absurd for you fellows to say that Hitler might win. At times you show an utter lack of knowledge. Do you read the newspapers? It's the duty of every college student to keep himself informed on current affairs. I repeat, how ridiculous for you to say that Hitler might win!

Only last week there was an excellent article in the Sunday magazine dealing with the wonderful work that is being done by the North African savages in their incantation ceremonies against Hitler. That man is DOOMED.

'America Needs You' Says Mathematics Instructor, E. Bond

To The Students of WWC:

I am asked for a word to you, so here goes: You see on the billboards the enticing invitations, AMERICA NEEDS YOU for the army, for the navy, and for the air service. Now, I am to say to you, AMERICA NEEDS YOU to give your all to make whatever service duty calls upon you to render as worthwhile as possible. To render such service you will need to work out for yourself a sound education so that you can take to that service all the potentialities of which you are capable.

Last year 26.4 per cent of our population was enrolled as learners in the public and private schools of our nation. This record cannot even be approached anywhere else in the world. The facts given above are the chief reasons for the greatness of America.

But large enrollments in school are not enough. Each student should make his chances count for the utmost possible. He should decree that this "afterself" should be equipped to render the best service of which he is capable. This means that the service should be motivated by a sound education.

Your teachers can help you to learn, but the learning is your task and your responsibility. No one can do it for you. If you develop a sound education, you will gain it by your own efforts.

As I see them, America's needs of today are these:

First, precision of thinking and of work;

Second, a closer solidarity of our people;

Third, a spirit of sacrifice—a willingness to give all: time, belongings, and even lives, to the tasks of maintaining and improving the freedom that every American possesses.

So my message to you is this: Give 100 per cent of your possible effort to your day-by-day tasks. Develop your own self-reliance and stand on your own feet. Chart your own course and go to it with all the power that you can muster.

E. A. BOND.

40-Year-Old YW Unites With CCF

Young Women's Christian association, which has the distinction of being the oldest organization on the campus, is now merged with the College Christian Fellowship. In recent years, the International Interservice Christian Fellowship has organized groups throughout universities and colleges of America. Their purpose is the same as that of the YWCA, but with men and women working together, the YWCA decided to close their separate organization and to unite with the CCF.

The YWCA was started during the first year of the Bellingham State Normal school, and has functioned continuously for forty years. They were the first club to recognize the need of a cafeteria, developed and carried it on for fifteen years, after which the cafeteria was taken over by the school.

Football Gaining Popularity; Inter-collegiate Contests Favored According To Poll

By Student Opinion Surveys.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 6.—Recently President Robert M. Hutchins of Chicago announced that the university was getting along quite well without intercollegiate athletics. But the game continues to thrive in nearly every other university and most of the smaller colleges. Furthermore, the sport as it exists today has the approval of nearly nine out of every ten college students.

Only 5 per cent of the nation's collegians would substitute the big-time games with an intramural program, it is found in a study conducted by Student Opinion Surveys of America, the national weekly poll of college thought sponsored by 150 undergraduate newspapers, including the WWColegian.

Hundreds of students were interviewed everywhere from the University of Maine to Stanford in California, with the question, "Would you rather see football in your school continued as an intercollegiate sport, or would you rather substitute it with an expanded intramural football program for all students?" These were the results, including only schools that sponsor intercollegiate football:

Continue intercollegiate	87%
Substitute intramural	5
Undecided	8

Besides the old argument that football and all its fanfare do not add to the scholarship of a teaching institution, some critics maintain that the game is too dangerous, pointing out that serious injuries and even deaths result every year. Of the validity of this argument the American student body is even less convinced:

Believe football too dangerous	9%
Believe it is not too dangerous	91

But, as an Oregon student pointed out, "It's easy to say it is not dangerous because most of us don't get tackled out on the field."

Nearly three years ago, when Dr. Hutchins began his fight against football, the surveys found that only 24 per cent of the students believed professional football would "someday become more popular than college football." And only 15 per cent at that time wanted colleges to give up intercollegiate competition. Judging from the present poll, football is gaining rather than decreasing in popularity.

Letting Off Steam!--!!--!?

Dear Editor:

Tuesday evening I attended the dancing instruction class in the Training school gym. Now one would naturally expect that beginning dancers would at least be given simple music to dance to. What did they get? Why, rhumbas, fast fox trots, hot numbers by the Andrews sisters, etc. Any person who learns to dance to that music surely will be a "Casanova" at dancing to decent music.

All praise possible is due the instructors. They did a grand job; the very best possible with the music they were given.

Why can't this class that means so much to so many socially backward students be given a few decent records to play?

Maybe it was just my dislike of the music, but I personally talked to seven different students who were also mighty disgusted with the music. PLEASE—can't this situation be remedied?

CARONET.

TO THE EDITOR:

What, no Rec hour after the Homecoming Assembly? Sir, you are destroying our traditions!

"Wata Tamata"

Why blame me; anyway I doubt if traditions are involved.
