College Holds Open House

Open house brought an end to the College Week activities. Sunday, October 6. Dr. W. W. Haggard, president, expressed delight at the number of people who participated. He estimated that close to 1,000 people attended.

Many people sat on the lawn and listened to the band concert which was presented from the open air deck of the A.M. building.

After a varied program in the auditorium, the guests set out on a tour of the campus and buildings, aided by programs and maps of the campus. Refreshments were served at various buildings.

Many of the guests were people who had not visited the campus for many years. Great surprise was expressed at the many additions and improvements that had been made. The committee for college week, headed by Clyde Cory, felt that the entire week's program had been a success.

Grunschlags Here Next

Toni and Rosi Grunschlag, duo pianists from Vienna, come to Western from a summer of appearances with orchestras in Mexico. They will present the second program in the fall quarter Artist and Lecture series at 10 a. m., Tuesday, in the A-M building.

Beginning their study of piano at a very early age in their native city of Vienna, they won scholarships to the State Academy, graduating in 1938 with highest honors.

They made their New York debut in 1945 at the Town Hall, and have since played several recitals there, as well as in Carnegie Hall. They have also played with orchestras throughout the United States.

The schedule for the Tuesday program is as follows: Sonata in D Major, Mozart; Variations on a Theme by Haydn, Johannes Brahms; Rondo, Frederic Chopin; Scherzo, C. Saint-Saen; Sentimiento, M. Infante; "Fledermaus" Waltzes, Strauss-Luboshutz.

Mullen Asks Skit Managers to Sign

"Everyone interested in presenting a skit in the Homecoming assembly is asked to sign up at the bulletin board," says Neill Mullen, chairman of the assembly committee. Also needed are members to fill in between acts. Anyone who has an act that could be presented is asked to sign the sheet in the main hall.

A cup will be presented to the house or organization with the winning skit. This cup becomes the property of the organization if it wins the contest for three years in a row. Edens hall retired the cup last year so a new cup will be presented this year.

Homecoming Plans Nearly Complete

Plans for the 1952 Homecoming are nearly completed. Rita Goldade, co-chairman, asks that everyone go "all out" for the window and house displays. All the organized houses will be notified of the contest and will be sent entry blanks.

Richard Dale has been appointed manager of the queen contest. He asks that everyone begin thinking of a candidate for queen, as the nomination will be held soon.

The Homecoming ball will be held at the Armory, November 1. Plans for the Friday night mixer are completed and Al Mendenhall will provide the music.

made. Those applying include Betty Grocott, John Albrecht, William Collyer, and Bill Moores.

Gloria Gaupp requested the Board to suggest some method of electing the song and yell leaders so they could be ready for the game tomorrow night. Authority was given the Pep committee to elect the leaders, with whatever assistance they would need. Gloria invited the Board to vote, and was planning to include presidents of school-representing clubs. Tryouts were held last night in the A-M building.

Rita Goldade and Bob Porter reported on the progress of the Homecoming committee. They requested additional funds to cover their itemized account of expenditures.

Funds were granted the Orion club for live music at a mixer.

Hall Given 'Star' Award

High scholastic standing of Western's students has again been shown in the awarding of an outstanding scholarship to Marilyn Hall, a Western junior. The scholarship, sponsored by the Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, State of Washington, is valued at $150.

To receive this honor, the recipient must be a son or daughter of an Eastern Star member. Selection is made on the basis of scholastic achievement and leadership.

Marilyn's mother is a member of Daylight chapter in Seattle. She is very active in school activities. She is vice president of AWS., vice president of Senior hall, poetry editor for the Writer, a member of the Co-op Bookstore board, Valkyrie, and WRA. She is student teaching at Fairhaven.

An interview with Marilyn revealed that she was very pleased and realizes the great honor this scholarship involves.

Editorially Speaking:

Volumes of writing constituted the tedious registration procedure for Western students this quarter, and now that that form of writing is over for three more months, the writing has changed to thinking about the length of the registration booklets.

It is no wonder that mistakes are made on registration cards. The length is enough to aggravate any student into doing a "rush" job. The problem, then, seems to be one of how to shorten it.

Possible ways are the following: (1) Combine the material for the Collegian, Klipsun, and Profile on one card instead of three; (2) Combine Registrar, Personnel, and Dean of Men or Women to one card, and locate this card in a file centrally located between the neighboring offices; (3) Drop the separate church preference card since the information written on it is already included on another card.

Other ways might be to include Student Wives and Automobile information on one of the essential cards, and to drop the Student's Trial Study schedule since the student is given the pre-registration copy obtained in the first line.

Cutting the size of the registration booklet would cut the amount of time necessary in registering for the student, would end the long line-ups visible this Fall, and lessen the amount of filing needed to alphabetize the cards once they are filled out.

"Literature at Half-Century" Theme of Opening Speaker

Pointing out the evolution of American literature and its impression on and of American life in the last fifty years, Edward Weeks, editor of America's oldest magazine, the Atlantic Monthly, opened the 1952 WWC Fall quarter Artists and Lecture series Tuesday.

Enthusiastically received by a mixed audience of students, faculty members, and townspeople, Weeks began his talk with a small sketch of the beginning of his career, then went on to books on government, economics, science, and psychology written in the first twenty years of this century, and how they have influenced our life and literature today.

Turning in his speech to fiction, Weeks explained how the discoveries of Sigmund Freud, and the subsequent publishing of his first book on psychology in 1914 brought about a change in fiction from Victorian modesty to styles of writing, leaving very little, if anything, to the imagination of the reader. The speaker expressed gratification that fiction writers are again leaving a few of the details to the mind of the reader.

Giving examples of outstanding writing from the 1920's up to the present, Weeks pointed out the vitality and buoyancy of the writing of the '20's, the misery and moodiness in the writing of the depression years, and the return to narration, compassion and vitality in the post war years.

The speaker then touched on the change in writing of biographies from idolizing eulogies to down-to-earth studies of the subject as a human being, rather than as a demi-god.

Encouraging young writers, Weeks said that there is a need on the literary market for a book dealing with the American labor movement. He estimated he had rejected about "a half dozen" such manuscripts, "because they did not go deep enough into their subject to give its warmth and vitality."

"There is plenty of room in the field for the young author," Weeks said, but reminded students, if they were to write for the "Atlantic," that the magazine has very exacting and articulate readers.

In cautioning against "experimental" writing, Weeks explained that it often loses readers unless very carefully handled. He pointed out rising costs of publishing by citing a case where the typographer received more for setting the book in type than the author who wrote it. He further stated that 5,000 copies of a book must be sold before the publisher breaks even.

Weeks said that pocket books are cutting into big books profits, not only in sales, but also because a "name" author such as William Faulkner can possibly make as much from selling directly to the pocket books as to "hard cover" books.

'Vik' Fashions Uke From Plywood

Entertaining comrades of the 25th Infantry division in Korea with music from a makeshift ukulele is PFC Robert M. Ellington, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Ellington, 21817 Marine View drive, Des Moines, Washington.

While attending WWC before he was drafted in 1951, "Duke" Ellington played a guitar at student assemblies.

Ellington whittled the body of the ukulele from scraps of plywood and fashioned the neck from a 2x4 plank, "When I started, I wasn't sure what I would use for strings," he said, "so I began looking around for a substitute for regular strings. Communication wire was the only thing I could find."

He fastened the strings to the homemade frame. As the first string was plucked, a clear, steady tone came from "Duke's" uke.

Fireside Chat

Hereafter these Fireside Chats will be informative of your student government and the Board of Control. But first, I would like to preface the series with a time-honored fact, accepted by almost everyone, yet realized by few.

I have been going to college for three years and have had a roaring good time while trying to keep up with my studies. College life is wonderful—there are social and recreational functions, there are clubs and organizations, and there are studies to occupy a person's time among people of approximately the same age with pretty much the same objectives in life on the college campus. That phrase with which many people are so familiar and which I have said to myself in all seriousness is, "... this is the only chance to get as much out of a college education as possible—get all you can, NOW."

Whenever I have heard that phrase I have heartily agreed and endorsed it with much enthusiasm. Finally, after all this time I believe I realize the true importance of that statement. I am sure you have heard it many, many times before, and I imagine you will hear it again and again. It cannot be said enough, for it is so common a thing to hear that we fail to grasp the deep significance it carries.

Now that the year is under way I ask you to answer this with earnestness and sincerity to yourself, "Am I getting as much as I can out of my college education?" By college education I mean an integrated program of (1) studies, (2) membership in clubs and organizations, and (3) participation in social and recreational activities.

If you haven't realized the significance of this question I hope that it won't take you as long a time as it has for me. Keep up with the assignments, but enjoy your college career.

MARK HARDIE,
ASB President.

Simon Says . . .

Don't be downcast! So you were not one of the lucky aspiring actors to be chosen. You must remember that if the actors were the only ones concerned with a play there would be a very high unemployment rate on Broadway and in Hollywood. The cast needs a vast invisible corps which must complete their work before the first night of a successful production. Ergo, if you can swing a paintbrush, plug a typewriter, or pound a nail YOU ARE NEEDED. Contact either the play's director, Laurence W. Brewster, or the technical director, Mark W. Flanders, and help put on a successful quarter play.

Do we have any aspiring writers on campus today? Can any of you "unstuck the door" of realism? Edward Weeks last Tuesday in a very interesting lecture told us that after the first world war the barn door had been pushed farther and farther open until it has become stuck. He has offered all of us a challenge to unstuck the door and leave a little room for imagination.

Norsemen! Get that special girl of yours on the phone. She will want to go to the Norseman fall semi-formal dance on October 18.

German Student Advanced in Language, Math; Tells of Anxiety in Homeland

By ROGER GRAY

Among the foreign students attending Western this year is a young lady from a small town near Cologne, Germany.

Maren Frese, when asked why she chose Bellingham for her new home, replied that it is well known that the western part of the U. S. is the best place to live; then she quoted Horace Greeley.

Maren had two years to go before she finished high school in Germany, but due to the differences in the American and European educational systems, she was able to enroll at Western as a freshman. In many subjects, in fact, she is far advanced over her classmates. For example, she speaks three languages fluently—English, French, and German—and reads and writes Latin. She was also able to skip elementary mathematics and take the advanced courses offered here.

One of the reasons Maren gave for her and her mother, who is an M.D., coming to the U. S., was their close proximity to the Russians. She says the German people distrust and fear the Russians. Maren's grandparents live in the Russian zone and she and her mother have visited them three times since the occupation began. She says that people in the Russian zone never have enough food and that they live in constant fear. They are allowed half a pound of meat per person per month; one-fourth pound of butter. Often, she continued, they don't get that much. Maren's grandfather, however, is also a doctor, and consequently they live somewhat better than most people in the Russian zone.

Maren believes that there is a certain feeling of skepticism among the German people concerning the intentions of the Allies. They do not have full faith that the Allies would defend Germany in the event of Communist aggression.

Another reason Maren and her mother left Germany was that the government exerts too much influence over the lives of the people. She says that she is somewhat disappointed to find that the situation in this country is not much different from her homeland in that respect. She believes that personal liberty is infringed in the U. S. because of the enormous size of the government.

Maren is enrolled in the junior college program and hasn't decided what her major will be.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

As I am serving with the U. S. army, I am in no position to receive the Collegian in the student capacity as I have during the past few years. I would like to get the Collegian, however, so would you please quote me the price for one year.

I have passed through many colleges since I have been in the army: namely Kansas, Kansas State, Harvard, Rutgers, M.I.T., Columbia, Dartmouth and mainly Holy Cross, but have not found a campus as nice as Western's. None have an auditorium-music building like Western's.

I read of Western's loss to Pacific U., 9-7, in the Chicago Tribune. Glad to see you are getting the publicity but hope I don't read of another loss. Say hello to my many friends at Western.

PVT. DWIGHT R. REYNOLDS.

INITIATION IS TORTURE

Fourteen girls were initiated into Spencer Hall last Sunday night by girls who were previous residents at the house.

The girls endured various forms of torture, such as wearing their clothes inside out and backwards, scrubbing sidewalks with toothbrushes, and undergoing "Shampoos" made of a mixture of blackstrap molasses, vinegar and milk. Later they were treated to "ex-lax chip" cookies and raw oysters, and informed they could not put up their hair for the next day of school.

The girls initiated were Nancee Trafton, Sally Sutherland, Carol Mulford, Beverly Kidd, Donna Diamond, Donna Howitson, Delores Johnson, Lois Lindberg, Pat Hackett, Ann Patrykus, Barbara Henton, Donna Eden, Nancy Baker, and Linda Wahl.

Next week, house officers will be elected, with Mrs. Joseph Spencer, housemother, presiding.

LONG SLEEPLESS NIGHT

Seventeen girls were roused out of a sound sleep at 3:30 in the early morning of October 7, to the tune of clanging and banging pans. Thus, the official initiation of new girls to Senior hall was underway. The fifteen freshmen, and two sophomore victims were given a cold and early breakfast of cereal. The girls are now all members after a long and sleepless night.

The first Senior hall meeting for the fall term brought about the election of some new officers. Arlayne Brown was elected secretary-treasurer for the coming year. Newly elected officers for the fall quarter are Georgie Hayward, work chairman; Helen Barton, Sue Fisher, Lorrene Bergman and Donna Gislsson, standards committee; and Jean Hammerstein, scrap book chairman. Mary Ann Ohrt, Arlene McKinney, and Mary Lee Flickinger were chosen house reporters for the Collegian.

House president, Monica Fredrickson, outlined plans for the quarter which includes open house on October 19.

A new and lively addition to the house is a black and white cocker spaniel pup donated by Monica Fredrickson. The girls haven't decided on a name yet, but a couple of good suggestions have been made.

Chest Will Serve Eleven Charities

Elevent in one! That is what a contribution to the 1952 Community Chest will be. It will be one gift to cover eleven local social agencies which, directly or indirectly, benefit every one in the community.

The quota for the college community is about the same as last year, $2,200, while the quota for the city of Bellingham has been raised $4,500 to $94,298.

Dr. Arthur Hicks is general of the College division for the fund raising drive.

Chalk Talk

By DON KERR

After a bruising game last Saturday night in Tacoma, resulting in a 7-7 tie, the Vikings of Western are now looking forward to the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds. This is UBC's first year as an official member of the Evergreen conference and to date they have failed to enter the win column. However, the Thunderbirds have shown excellent form this year, and could upset the apple cart on a few occasions. Luckily, the Vikings don't sell apples.

Many "ifs" enter the picture in regard to the final outcome of conference standing, "If" CPS Loggers can repeat their previous victory over PLC Gladiators two weeks from now; "if" Western duplicates the display of football played last Saturday; then there is no reason why the Viks could not capture the championship.

Last year's victories over Eastern Washington Savages were the Viking's first since 1938 . . . Western has the habit of ruining many a Homecoming for the opposition . . . the Savages will be the guests of the Blue and White at this year's Homecoming—let us not see a reversal of form . . . Rassley's punting last Saturday was strictly Pacific Conference kicking—he averaged 45 yards per punt . . . the leading punter in the PCC has an average of 46.1.

Demand Is Great For New Book

Sale of Coach Charles Lappenbusch's book, "Kill the T," is beginning to gain momentum. Speaking before the American Coach's association, a group of college coaches, was a big help in the selling of the book. There have been copies of the book sold in every state. Lappenbusch recently received a request from Lockhaven, Connecticut, for an explanation of his book and the film of one of the games to explain it.

When asked what effect the game last week would have on the sale of his book, Coach Lappenbusch answered, "PLC was so glad to tie the game they might even buy a book."

WRA

A cordial invitation to all women students to join and participate in WRA's 1952-53 recreation program was issued this week by Margaret Cole, president; Betty Foss, vice president; Carmela Fedrico, secretary; Beverly Manely, treasurer; and Wilma Shannon, general sports manager.

This year's program will begin with an initiation tea in Edens hall. Some of the other highlights of the year are the boat trip to the cabin on Sinclair Island, a winter carnival, and the high school Sports day.

Dues for the club are 50 cents a year or 25 cents a quarter.

Club adviser is Miss Margaret Aitken, of the Women's Physical Education department.

College Renews Student Hikes

Busses will leave the PE building at 8:15 Saturday morning loaded with people who are interested in the PE department's 120 mile trip to Mt. Baker and back.

Leading the group will be Dr. Louise Roloff and Miss Patricia Heiber, both of the Women's PE department. They list sack lunches, water or juice, comfortable shoes, layers of shirts, sweaters, and jackets and a desire to see and admire some of the mountain scenery as essentials for the trip.

Hikers, climbers, picture takers and viewers are welcome to join the group, by just signing their names on the list posted on the recreation bulletin board which is outside the Registrar's office, in the main hall. Cost of the trip will be one dollar.

"The forest fire won't bother us, but we may have a view of it from afar," Miss Heiber said Wednesday.

For further information see Dr. Roloff or Miss Heiber in the Women's PE department.

Vikings Take Evergreen Lead; Tie PLC Gladiators 7-7

Last minute touchdowns by Western Washington Vikings and Pacific Lutheran Gladiators resulted in a 7-7 deadlock in the Evergreen Conference football game in the Lincoln bowl at Tacoma last Saturday.

The air was literally filled with footballs as both the Viks and Gladiators depended upon a passing attack throughout the game. A total of 64 passes were attempted; Western completed 18 out of 37 while PLC succeeded in snagging 10 out of 25. Although outgained on the ground by 127 yards to 96, Western, behind the passing of Spud Walley, struck for 213 yards in the air, to PLC's 166. It was by the aerial route that both touchdowns were scored.

For three quarters both teams played heads up ball and only in the last three minutes were points made. After Sheehan intercepted a PLC pass, Western went from their own 39 yard line to the Gladiator's 3 where Wally connected with a short pass over the right side to Bogdonovich. Karwacki kicked the extra point, and with two and one half minutes left, Western led the ball game 7-0. On the kickoff the Lutes marched from their own 40 yard line in 4 plays and scored with one and one half minutes left in the contest. A pass to Karwacki, who bobbled the ball, then finally hung on to it, made the score 7-6. Then Karwacki, to round out the scoring, kicked the extra point to tie the ball game.

Tom Rassley, Western halfback, did the punting for the Blue and White, ending up with a 45 yard average for 5 kicks. Walley garnered 213 yards through the air. In the first down department, Western had 17 to the Lutes, 11. The edge came in the passing department as the Viks had 11 first downs on passing.

Western now has sole possession of first place in conference standings as a result of their 13-6 victory over CPS Loggers. Tomorrow night the Viks meet University of British Columbia Thunderbirds at Battersby field.
